

ROOSEVELT SHARPLY WARNS DICTATORS; PLEDGES U. S. MIGHT TO GUARD AMERICAS

Crackers Defeat Lookouts, 7 to 1; 15,386 See Opener

Atlantans Rough on Hurlers as Harris Turns in 7-Hit Game; Team Shows Hustle, Speed.

By JACK TROY.

Playing brilliantly before a colorful opening day crowd of 15,386, the champion Crackers got away to a flying start against Chattanooga yesterday at Ponce de Leon park. The score was 7 to 1.

Johnny Chambers, Atlanta boy, lasted only three innings. The Crackers scored a run an inning off him. Chambers started the fourth but retired in favor of Ted Pritchett, former Cracker, when the Crackers scored their fourth run and there was a man on base with nobody out. Pritchett was in good form, but the Crackers scored three runs before he retired for a pinch-hitter in the eighth. Dick Lanahan finished the game for Chattanooga.

Seven-Hit Fitching.
Luman Harris turned in a seven-hit performance for the Crackers and for seven innings pitched shutout ball. The Lookouts scored their only run in the eighth. They didn't offer a major threat in any of the other innings.

Manager Paul Richards' fleet and streamlined edition of the Crackers averaged a run an inning through the seventh. And they threatened mightily in the eighth when Harris led off with a sharp double. Bolling beat out an infield hit. Bolling went out on an attempted steal, however, and Anderson and Mallico went out.

The Big Guns.
Jack (Rabbit) Bolling, Manager Richards' Al Rubeling paced the Crackers' 11-hit attack. Bolling, who is a real threat to lead the Southern league in hitting, started off well. He obtained three hits in four times at bat. Richards' two hits in three times up included probably the longest home run a right-hander has ever hit to right in Ponce de Leon park. The Garantuan wallop cleared the last row of signs in right center. Rubeling blasted a double and single in three times up and drove in two runs.

In all, the Crackers collected six

STATE DISMISSES F. D. R. MILITIAMEN IN ECONOMY DRIVE

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., April 14. (P)—Retrenchment in expenses to balance Georgia's "Little New Deal" budget has led to dismissal of two state National Guardsmen assigned to patrol grounds of the Little White House here.

Adjutant General John E. Stoddard said removal of the two men, placed at President Roosevelt's Pine Mountain home four years ago to protect it from "souvenir hunters," would save $3,600 annually.

LINDBERGH IS BACK IN U. S. AFTER YEAR

Famous Flyer Maintains Silence; Barbara Hutton, Son on Same Boat.

NEW YORK, April 14.—(P)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh arrived here tonight on the liner Aquitania on his first visit to his American homeland in more than a year. His cabin was locked against a curious throng, with police standing guard outside, as the ship docked.

The Aquitania was met down the bay by three coast guard cutters, one of which carried a detachment of Treasury and secret service agents, who went immediately to Lindbergh's quarters. Agents of the line who went to the flyer's cabin after the ship had arrived at the pier, reported that he wished to keep his customary silence, and had no statement to make concerning his plans while here.

Another passenger said Lindbergh and the former Barbara Hutton, estranged wife of the Danish Count Kurt Haugwitz-Reventlow and like the aviator a voluntary exile from the United States, sat together for a time in the ship's lounge this afternoon. Others said he kept to himself.

SUFFICIENT FUNDS TO MEET PAY ROLL CLAIMED BY HUIET

Labor Commissioner Says He Has Enough Cash To Pay Aides Until May 15; Summons Council of 11.

Long distance telephone conversations yesterday between State Labor Commissioner Ben T. Huie and Paul E. Batsell, budget director of the Federal Social Security Board, ended in Huie's announcing that he had sufficient funds to meet all his pay rolls until May 15.

Pay rolls that are due will be met today, Huie announced, in the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation and the Georgia State Employment Service.

"I was assured that drafts were being authorized by wire that would handle all my problems, when I match those federal funds with what I have on hand and what is due me from the state," said Huie.

Certain of State Money.

"Will the state money be forthcoming?" he was asked.

"Oh yes, certainly," he said. "It is due and I don't think it will be held up. I'm sure the Governor wouldn't do me that way."

The problem, he said, was whether the money would be supplied to him by the federal government.

"The reason for the delay," said Huie, "was explained by Batsell, and it was a problem that all the states had to face. The money was not available in Washington, but now it is, and I have full authority to pay all the salaries Saturday."

Set Until May 15.

"The funds made available to me will take care of all unexpected balances for the quarter ending December 31 and the quarter ending March 31, and I shall have no pay roll problems until the middle of next month."

Between telephone calls to Washington yesterday, Huie dispatched a letter to the house economy committee, welcoming an investigation of his department as a result of charges made by Representative Cicero Kendrick that the "department is not functioning according to law," and telegraphed 11 Georgians, summoning them to meet in his office at 10 o'clock this morning to help him fix a method of hiring and firing.

Authority Cited.

The latter plan to establish in the labor department a state advisory council on personnel administration had been conceived April 5, set into motion last Saturday, repudiated by George Gooch last Wednesday and revived again yesterday after Thursday's turbulent meeting in which Huie was told he would have no more money to pay salaries. Huie, in calling the meeting for today cited his authority under the unemployment compensation law adopted by the legislature in 1937.

Those summoned were: Philip Morgan, first congressional district; M. J. Hines, second; W. K. Holt, third; H. C. Hewell, fourth; Mrs. Marvin W. Medlock, fifth; W. O. Cooper, sixth; Mack G. Hicks, seventh; Sam Fraley, eighth; Marvin Bell, ninth; B. I. Cheney, tenth, and Logan H. Kelly, from the state at large. Huie's call announced: "It shall be the duty of said

LABOR ACT HELD A 'DICTATORSHIP' TO DIXIE TEXTILES

Cheatham Assails Administration of Wage-Hour Law, NLRB at Cotton Manufacturers' Parley.

NEW ORLEANS, April 14.—(P) A warning the United States was threatened with "dictatorship" under present policies of the wages and hour act administration and National Labor Relations Board was made before the American Cotton Manufacturers' Association here today by J. H. Cheatham, of Griffin, Ga., its president.

Cheatham charged before the annual convention here that there was an "apparently covert and planned procedure to gradually destroy the sovereignty of our states in favor of a government centralized at Washington."

Calls for "Czar."

Coupled with this was Cheatham's recommendation that the textile industry, which he said was "producing goods which the market would not absorb," select a "czar" similar to those who direct the baseball and movie industries "to control production and put a price on our goods that will insure a fair return."

Cheatham said the wage and hour act had been "seized upon by northern politicians to hamstring the south." He said the National Labor Relations Board majority and the secretary of labor had administered that act "partially and unfairly" in a "country which shouts of its democracy," and concluded that "some of us wonder just where we are heading."

"We are extremely critical of the personal dictatorships in Europe," he said, "and in this attitude we apparently have considerable comfort and support from many of those now in power in this government."

"However, the principle of a dictatorship is not confined solely to those countries under the technical title of dictators."

"Such a principle can be just as effectively exercised in a country that denominates itself a democracy when it abandons all regard for the majority will of those in a section thereof duly entitled to a voice as to the way they desire

HOUSE BODY OKAYS CANAL IN FLORIDA

$200,000,000 Project, Abandoned in 1935, Is Revived by 10-6 Vote.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—(P) The Florida ship canal, subject of many congressional debates, was approved by the house rivers and harbors committee today on a 10-6 vote.

Two Republicans and eight Democrats voted to revive the $200,000,000 project, abandoned in 1935 because congress refused to appropriate funds for it. Preliminary work had been done with $5,400,000 of relief funds.

The measure approved by the house committee was introduced by Chairman Mansfield, Democrat, Texas, after President Roosevelt, early in this session, urged congress to authorize completion of the canal. It merely authorizes future appropriations.

Sees Early House Vote.

Congressional approval of the bill, even though it carries no money, would serve, however, to put the canal in line for a later appropriation and advocates of the waterway were jubilant over the committee vote.

Representative Green, Democrat, Florida, a supporter of the project, said the committee would

Death Parts Dr. Gramling And His Bride

Romance Culminated in Marriage When Physician Entered Hospital.

Death wrote a tragic ending yesterday to the romance of Dr. Robert E. Gramling, who Tuesday married his office assistant, Mrs. Louise Harcourt, so that hospital rules would not keep her from nursing him through what proved to be his last illness.

Suffering from a stomach ailment, his physicians ordered an operation as soon as his condition would permit. Dr. Gramling insisted that Mrs. Harcourt should be his nurse.

Undergraduate Nurse.

Since she was an undergraduate rather than a graduate nurse, this was impossible under hospital regulations. But there were no rules to prevent a wife from nursing her husband. They were married and he was taken to the hospital immediately.

His condition grew steadily worse and he died at 4:40 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Physicians said death was caused by the stomach disorder complicated by heart trouble.

Of Pioneer Family.

Dr. Gramling, who had practiced medicine here for more than 20 years, was a member of a pioneer Atlanta family. His father, the late John R. Gramling, was a partner in the firm of Gramling & Spalding, one of the city's first large wholesale firms, and lived for many years in a large home at Peachtree and Baker streets.

Dr. Gramling maintained his office and lived at 49 Georgia avenue. In addition to his practice, he also was well known for his laboratory research work, specializing in bacteriology and tropical diseases. He is survived by his wife. Funeral arrangements will be announced by Awtry & Lowndes.

RUSSIAN AIR AID SOUGHT BY BRITAIN

Accord With Soviets May Overcome Rumanian and Polish Objections.

LONDON, April 14.—(P)—Great Britain and France were reported reliably tonight to be seeking an agreement with Soviet Russia by which the full force of her air fleet would be sent against anyone them or their allies.

It was said in diplomatic quarters this scheme had been discussed in an important conference today between Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax and Ivan Maisky, Russian ambassador to the Court of St. James.

The plan was reported to be a French idea proposed in the hope it would overcome differences which have arisen over Russia's co-operation with proposed Britain's European grand alliance.

One British official held out

Poland and Rumania Pledge Armed Unity

WARSAW, April 15.—(Saturday)—(P)—Poland and Rumania have exchanged verbal pledges to unite in armed resistance to aggression by Germany or any possible German satellite.

The two nations, allied since 1921 to protect their eastern frontiers against Soviet Russia, strengthened the alliance to apply to an attack from the west, and drafted strong defense plans.

The mutual pledges were exchanged between the Polish foreign minister, Colonel Joseph Beck, and the Rumanian ambassador, Richard Franasovici, in Warsaw, and by the Rumanian foreign minister, Grigore Gafencu, and the Polish ambassador, Count Roger Raczyński, in Bucharest.

GERMANY, ITALY BITTERLY ASSAIL CHIEF EXECUTIVE

Berlin Declares Speech Reveals President as 'Master Wire Puller' Behind Encirclement.

By The Associated Press.

Europe's democracies were heartened and the totalitarian states angered yesterday by President Roosevelt's Pan-American Day speech which was interpreted as a fresh slap at dictators.

The President urged European nations to "break the bonds" of militaristic ideas and asserted that the Americas can and will help the Old World avoid war.

Claiming for the western hemisphere "a stake in world affairs," he bluntly warned that any aggression against the United States or its neighbor nations would be resisted by "matching force to force." Moreover, he said, the New World's "will to peace" would "have its voice in determining the order of world affairs."

Sources close to the French government considered the President's declaration that the Americas could and would help the Old World avoid war as an avowal of support for the British-French anti-aggression front.

German government circles said the President's address revealed him as "the master wire puller behind the anti-German encirclement policy," and Italian Fascists saw in it new evidence of "provocative meddling" in European affairs.

Deutsche Dienst, officially-inspired commentary distributed by the DNB official German news agency, referred bitterly to the President as "war agitator Roosevelt" who wanted "to open a 'Holy crusade' against the German people."

Welcomed in Britain.

The speech received a wide welcome in Britain. The British foreign office evidenced apparent pleasure, but refrained from comment.

Both Britain and France broadcast the President's remarks and their newspapers carried them in extra editions.

The French foreign ministry had the address dictated over transatlantic telephone from New York for consecutive broadcast in French, German and Italian.

Radio officials in New York said they could recall no similar action on the part of French officials in the past.

Soviet Russian circles withheld comment.

In the New World, Brazil hailed the speech as "an important

PNEUMONIA FATAL TO MRS. MIKELL, WIFE OF BISHOP

Member of Distinguished Southern Family, She Was Active in Church, Civic Work Many Years.

Mrs. Henrietta Bryan Mikell, wife of Bishop H. J. Mikell, of the Atlanta diocese of the Episcopal church, died of pneumonia yesterday morning at a private hospital after an illness of two weeks. She had been in declining health for several years.

Funeral services are to be conducted at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Cathedral of St. Philip by the Right Rev. Frank A. Juhan, the Very Rev. Raimundo de Ovies, the Rev. Canon Charles F. Schilling and the Rev. William S. Turner.

Pallbearers will be Judge E. E. Pomeroy, Dr. W. Perrin Nicolson, Dr. Calhoun McDougall, W. B. Farnsworth, Charles Meriwether, A. Ten Eyck Brown, Edwin Sterne and Frank Bone. Burial will be in West View cemetery under direction of H. M. Patterson & Son.

Came From Nashville. A member of a distinguished southern family, Mrs. Mikell was the former Henrietta Bryan, of Charleston, S. C., and made her home in Nashville for many years before moving here in 1917 when Bishop Mikell was consecrated.

She was the daughter of the late George D. and Mary Middleton Bryan, who were among the early settlers in Charleston. Active in church and civic work here for many years, she was a member of the Daughters of the King and attended the diocesan convention at Macon in January as a representative of the Women's Auxiliary.

Bishop Mikell is past national president of the Kappa Alpha fraternity and is chancellor of the University of the South. Their home is at 108 Seventeenth street, northeast.

Also surviving are two sisters, Miss Rebecca Bryan and Mrs. Mary Bryan French, of Charleston; a brother, Richard Bryan, of Charleston; a son-in-law, J. M. Jones, and a granddaughter, Henrietta Mikell Jones, both of Savannah.

SCHOOLS NEGOTIATE TO COMPLETE TERM

Various Measures Adopted To Meet Expenses During Financial Crisis.

County and independent school systems throughout Georgia yesterday continued to negotiate to keep institutions functioning for the remainder of the term despite a breakdown in state payments on the seven-month school term.

Andrew Avery, Decatur county school superintendent, said schools there will be operated by discounting Western & Atlantic railroad rentals amounting to $3,816.02, and that the only salary reductions yet mandatory have been slashes in administrative schedules. The state is behind about $44,000 in payments to the county.

The Richmond County Board of Education, Augusta, announced that authority to borrow up to $250,000 has been voted to keep schools open through December 1. Loans are to be sought from Augusta banks to tide over the fiscal crisis.

Dawson city white schools and those of Terrell county will complete the year notwithstanding lack of state aid, Mrs. Helen G. Gurr, county school superintendent, announced. Negro schools closed April 7. All teachers have been paid and money is available to meet April demands, it was reported.

Brooks County School Superintendent R. H. Gill announced from Quitman that the system has reduced transportation expenses by $1,400 already and the further paring is expected next year. The saving was made largely through consolidations.

Seven white schools are still operating in the county on borrowed money in an attempt to give students credits for pre-college work.

COURTHOUSE, CITY CREWS SEE OPENER

Skeleton Staffs Take Care of Business.

During the ball game yesterday Mayor Hartsfield held down the city hall while all other offices were closed. Skeleton crews manned important departments at the courthouse. Guy Moore, tax receiver, said he could not close that department "because some of the taxpayers of Fulton county might want service regardless of the fact that the crackers open what we hope is another pennant-winning season."

The Fulton county grand jury adjourned early without turning out any great mass of routine, but failed to announce its destination.

S. C. YOUTH FIRST IN LEGION ORATORY

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 14—(P)—Fletcher Padgett Jr., of Saluda, S. C., today won the American Legion's national high school oratorical contest.

The 16-year-old high school senior, representing the southern Atlantic seaboard region, bested four other contestants, giving a 12-minute address on Americanism and a six-minute extemporaneous discourse on the Bill of Rights of the United States Constitution.

ATLANTA, GA., APRIL 15, 1939.

WISE COUNSEL

Senator George, in his speech on the floor of the senate Thursday, voiced the sentiment of the American people when he warned that they will not permit the nation to be carried into war for the salvation of any European country or theory of government.

Avoiding the hysteria which has marked the utterances of less responsible public figures, the senator calmly and succinctly outlined a policy to which every person will subscribe and one which should be kept to the forefront during the trying months to come. It is a policy against which the waves of propaganda will break as the ocean on a rocky shore.

"The American people," the senator said, "have become excited and disturbed over the prospects of our becoming involved in any European conflict. . . . I desire to serve notice now that I will not vote for any measure that gives the President the right to say who the aggressor is in the event of war, for to take that step is to take a step in the direction of war. When we name the aggressor we have taken the first steps toward war, and within six months the streets of American cities will again resound with the tread of marching feet of boys going to war. . . . There is undoubtedly propaganda in this country, very wide propaganda and very subtle in its nature, to get us into war; that is, to create the war sentiment and mould the war mind here in the United States. . . . We should take no part in any European war."

In those words one may read the sentiment of every American, a deduction finding emphasis in the words of Stephen Chadwick, commander of the American Legion, speaking in Atlanta at the time the senator was addressing the senate. Mr. Chadwick declared, in effect, that America should not let the tough breaks of this side or the other allow us to be inflamed with an impulse to hop in and settle it all. "It's their mess—we should keep our nose out of it."

These two leaders express, in their own words, a course for America to follow, a course charted from their intimate knowledge of the world scene and of the American people—of the dangers to which the United States' form of government would be exposed should the nation permit itself to be dragged again into the mud of Flanders and the mire of European power politics.

This is not to say, however, that the United States can bury its head in the sand and thereby effectively quarantine war away from these shores. America must remain, realistic enough to foresee the dangers inherent in a world of chaos, and to attempt, without involvement, to avert the explosion which seems to many today to be inevitable. America must, above all, carry out the defense program guaranteeing the inviolability of the western hemisphere from European doctrines.

When Senator George declares that we should take no part in any European war, he is considering the elements too often overlooked by the general public, but which loom greater and greater when it is considered that the second world war will inevitably be a "total" war; in other words, every factor in national life will be regimented into the machinery for the conduct of the war. The regimentation of World War years would be insignificant when compared to the M-day plans for the War and Navy departments today. Under this, America would become a state as completely totalitarian as Germany and in the unavoidable economic chaos of the aftermath the liberty which we so highly value today will have been lost forever.

America must consider also that the European situation was imposed against the demands and the promises of the United States for reasonable peace treaties. Great Britain and France created the condition which they now seek so desperately to alleviate short of warfare. The error of their ways was pointed out long years ago and the warning repeated time and time again. So that there can be no moral obligation cited which would perhaps require the consideration of the United States.

And above all other considerations, the United States has a sufficient duty to itself and to the western hemisphere to engage its entire attention. It is futile to arouse a nation to the difficulties of other lands while there remain manifold difficulties within this country and immediately beyond its borders.

America must keep the war drums muffled, must turn a deaf ear to the importunities of the propagandists, must plow a straight furrow away from the temptation to seek the imposition of democracy in a far-away continent born to the traditions of power and all they imply. The senator has performed a distinct service in clarifying the sentiment of every American before the sounding board of the senate chamber.

GREATER TRAFFIC FLOW

Mayor Hartsfield, in warning that he had ordered a campaign against excessive speeds on city streets, recently said that he felt many citizens were becoming impatient with the 25-mile speed limit. He emphasized that he would not permit the benefits of the lower limit to be lost through lax enforcement of the law, and in that every Atlantan will concur.

But it might be well if the reasons for this display of impatience mentioned by the mayor are examined in the light of reasonable cooperation.

It is axiomatic that enforcement of the speed law depends upon the co-operation of the public. Excessive speeds and chance-taking on Atlanta streets were born of a condition which permitted "making time" only outside of the downtown section. Immediately upon entering the central district, the motorist knew that he would be slowed to a snail's pace and consequently ran his automobile at a high rate of speed to cut down his over-all time. Public acceptance of the 25-mile limit and the benefits inherent in the change slowed this flow of traffic for a period of months.

If now the mayor finds the public impatient with the lower speed, it is entirely possible that other changes in the traffic system of Atlanta which will permit a greater flow of traffic at a reasonable speed will again bring these impatient motorists back to acceptance of a top-speed limitation.

Consider, for example, the question of traffic lights, now operating with the abandon of fireflies on a summer night. If they could be so integrated that a speed between 20 and 25 miles an hour, or even lower, would enable a motorist to proceed to his destination without stopping at almost every last-long block, is it not reasonable to assume that the driver will gear his pace to that of the lights? Under present conditions there is too great a temptation to "make the lights" with an excessive burst of speed, too great a temptation to make up time lost by waiting at a succession of lights.

There is, too, the problem of the doddering, or horse-and-buggy, variety of driver who is equally as dangerous as the speeder, poking along as he does in the middle of the thoroughfare and damming other traffic for blocks. There is a law which provides for motorists to keep as far as possible to the right. If enforced it would remove a serious cause of the impatience the mayor has discovered among his driving public.

The 25-mile speed limit is a proper regulation. It has saved lives. But the reasonable motorist cannot be expected to carry the whole burden, and it would be well if the city and its citizens examined the possibility of speeding the flow of traffic rather than permitting individual speeds to creep up beyond the danger point. Strict enforcement of the law is not enough.

LATIN-AMERICAN TRADE

Considerable uneasiness has been indicated as a result of the so-called German trade penetration in Latin America. The ancient system of bartering, introduced in modern times by a nation which must "export or die," has done much by way of demoralizing trade in markets where the United States has sought to improve her business in a spirit of reciprocity and elimination of inequitable tariff barriers.

Germany, in 1933, furnished 12 per cent of all foreign goods imported by Brazil. In 1937 the percentage had increased to 24 per cent. Chilean imports jumped from 11 to 26 per cent, in Guatemala they went from 12 to 32 per cent and Peru from 10 to 20 per cent, during the same comparative years.

In a number of these Latin-American markets, however, the Nazis succeeded merely in returning to Germany her prewar position. In Uruguay, Colombia and Argentina, the Reich is still far short of the position held before 1914.

While the position of the United States unquestionably has been challenged in Chile, Uruguay and Brazil, American goods remain the dominating factor in Colombia, Mexico, Peru and Guatemala. The German gains all around, while looked upon with uneasiness, have been made, so far, at the expense of the British—particularly in the Argentine—not to the detriment of the United States.

It may be looking several jumps ahead, but have the democracies a St. Helena in mind for you-know-who, when the time comes?

For headline purposes, it is noted that any loud political attitude is now adamant, or one of the softer grades of same.

Editorial of the Day

OLD TACTICS PREFERRED
(From the Washington Post)

The United Mine Workers have had long experience with collective bargaining. Hence the shutdown which has deprived approximately 338,000 bituminous coal miners of work and wages during the past week cannot be attributed to lack of familiarity with the practices and objectives of that system.

No industry has suffered more severely than coal mining from the effects of labor disputes. And no group of organized labor is more seriously menaced by prolonged suspension of work than are coal miners. For strikes and lockouts encourage the use of substitute fuels and thus threaten permanently to reduce the volume of employment in the coal industry.

John L. Lewis first proved himself an effective labor leader by his skillful unionization of this overdeveloped and demoralized industry. But he has not succeeded in securing for the miners the major advantage of habitually peaceful adjustment of differences over working conditions. Whether the blame for this failure is due primarily to the attitude of the operators, or to that of the union, or is caused by intransigence on both sides, is an open question. There is no doubt, however, that both sides have been addicted to the rough-and-tumble tactics of the era preceding passage of the Wagner labor relations act.

That may help to explain why Mr. Lewis seems to have little interest in revision of this law for the purpose of making it a more effective aid to industrial peace.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

FIRE EXTINGUISHERS WASHINGTON, April 14.—When flames threaten their houses, sensible men get out their fire extinguishers. When a great war threatens to reduce half our world to broken shards and bloody ruins, men of good will naturally seek to avert the catastrophe. And the question is now being fervently asked, both at the White House and at the State Department—"Can't we do something?"

Ever since Munich, when the coming of such a world crisis as the present one began to be feared, ways of "doing something" have been eagerly canvassed by the President and his advisers. Officials of the State Department, members of the New Deal group and even private individuals have been constantly consulted. Parallel efforts to "do something" of preventive nature were made in the move to amend the neutrality act and in the atmosphere of menace toward the dictator nations, so carefully fostered by the President.

By now, however, matters have reached a point where more drastic measures are called for. It is said on good authority that, in the last two or three days, both the President and Secretary of State Cordell Hull have given considerable time to reviewing the available expedients. To be sure, the time is ripe for American intervention, or for the kind of dramatic American gesture which would be tantamount to intervention. But the cables bring so many reasons for pessimism to the White House and the State Department that it would be foolish not to be prepared for the worst.

PESSIMISTS AND OPTIMISTS The tone of the foregoing may seem alarmist. It does not, and elsewhere by men best qualified to know the true position of affairs. One high official put it, "This is like 20 Munichs. Last September, the crisis had a focus. There was something for the opposing sides to negotiate about. Now there is no focus. There is only a confrontation of force with force, in which a collision is inevitable unless one side backs down."

And even the most conservative forecasters in the department now believe that there is small chance of England and France backing down. They describe the democracies as desperate; predict that, at best, if this crisis reaches no issue, there will be another just as bad in a few months; and point out wearily that the whole future is in the hands of one unbalanced man, Adolf Hitler. To be sure, American experts in foreign affairs are charged with crying "wolf!" by many senators and others who find it more comfortable not to think through the world problem. These say, "There'll be no war." Perhaps there may not be a war, but the fact remains that those who have all the information think it is touch and go. They can't be blamed for worrying when they see the youth and treasure of a continent trembling in a crazy balance.

BUT DO WHAT? Under such circumstances, the President is not the man to choose a passive role. He is always an activist, and in international affairs, in which he conceives his office gives him a heavy responsibility, he is always daring. His sympathy with the democracies is intense, though no more so than that of the country. His advisers, without exception, are anti-isolationist, and his special guide and philosopher in foreign matters, Ambassador William Christian Bullitt, is the least isolationist of all. It is much better than an even bet that, if the danger of war increases, the President will find "something" to do.

Two courses of action are open. The President can intervene directly abroad, calling all interested nations to a conference, or settle their differences, or an arms limitation conference, or some other talkfest which will prove the form of another peace plea. Direct intervention can be an official note expressing support of the democracies, or criticism and warning to the dictatorships. If public opinion permits, really forceful action threatening to Japan in the Pacific might even be attempted, in order to limit England's energies in Europe. Public opinion is the limiting factor. For example, though the President can dare to flout the isolationists by promising American participation.

As for the second course of action, with which the first would probably be combined, it is to make a strong domestic gesture. Hastening revision of the neutrality act and hastening and increasing the defense estimates both suggest themselves. Again, public opinion is the limiting factor. Thus far, in deference to it, the President has done nothing. But, if and when Bullitt from Paris, or Ambassador Kennedy from London, gives him word that all is not quite as he acts, it is not in his nature to sit quiet.

SILHOUETTES

Across the street
She looks so sweet,

Mere cosmetic beauty.

Encouragement,

Not Consolation.

It has always seemed to me that contemplation of another's greater woes is small help toward the solving of your own troubles. But it doubtless lends encouragement to your own struggle to learn that others have faced, and beaten, greater handicaps.

The man who said "I wept because I had no shoes until I met a man who had no feet" undoubtedly gained strength to endure his own misfortune. But the sight of the footless man didn't provide him with shoes, did it?

Nevertheless, the vision of fortitude displayed by those whose woes make your own look inconsequential does instill in you courage, combined with a little shame because you had been tempted to whine.

A Story

Of Two Women.

All these ruminations are the result of a story recently heard. It seems there was a young man who had always enjoyed all those comforts and refinements of life which depend upon a substantial income. On this particular day, he dropped in at her husband's office to attend a meeting at her woman's club. She found her husband in the depths of depression. A sudden turn in the stock market, or some other business misfortune, had taken away all he owned. He had been given up for dead, would have to give up his comfortable home and live, in future, in a manner far different than they had ever known.

But she went on to the club meeting anyway, though she was shocked, stunned and as though her world had come to an end. She believed her own misfortune to be just about the worst that could possibly happen to anyone.

At the meeting her distress was evident in her manner and expression. So much so that the woman seated next to her remarked upon it and asked the cause. Feeling the need of sympathy, the young matron told what had happened.

Now the woman in whom she confided was older. She was a quiet, well-dressed and competent looking person. The very type to whom those in trouble instinctively turn. She looked as though all was perfectly well in her world, as though she had discovered the secret of serenity.

"My dear," said the older woman, "the loss of money is such a little thing that it is scarcely to be listed as a trouble. Why, it is nothing at all. A little inconvenient, maybe, but of no real importance in the life of any intelligent person."

Real

Tribulations.

"I don't often tell the story of the things that life did to me," continued the older woman. "However, it may help you to ignore your own predicament."

"Years ago my life was ideally happy. My husband was successful, my daughter was just blossoming into lovely young womanhood and my son was a happy, bright boy in school. Then, one day, my daughter caught a cold. It developed into pneumonia and, in two weeks she died. I was heartbroken and thought that all the sorrow of the world had been thrust upon me by a cruel fate."

"It was only a few weeks after this, while I was still in the depths of woe, that my husband's bank failed, he was indicted for larceny after, trust and, though innocent, was convicted and sentenced to 10 years in prison."

"I did the best I could while he served his term and waited for the day, when, as I thought, his release would make life perfect once again. My boy had grown to young manhood and gone away to a distant state. Unknown to me, of course, he had fallen in with criminals, and just two weeks before my husband was set free my son took part in a holdup in which a police officer was killed. My boy was tried, convicted and sentenced to hang. Despite all we could do, we could not save him."

The woman was silent for a minute or so. She took the younger woman's hand in her own and gently patted it.

"I have learned," she said softly, "that there is a source of comfort for all of us, no matter how bitter the experiences through which we pass. It took a lot of learning for me. It shouldn't be hard for you. You've only lost a little money, a thing of no importance at all."

A modern story of Job with feminine personnel, isn't it?"

OPEN SEASON

By HUGH S. JOHNSON.

War Profits WASHINGTON, D. C., April 14.—A few days ago, 50 senators signed a petition to bring up a bill to tax away profits in war. It proposed, in income taxes, to confiscate so much of corporate and personal income that it practically abolished the profits and capitalist system in time of war. Aside from the fact that this would amount to Communist revolution and paralyze our defenses at the moment of attack, the 50 senators didn't consider another fact, the federal income tax is only one of many federal, state and local taxes. The rates in this bill were so nearly 100 per cent that it left no tax-paying ability in the country to support the states and cities. The power to tax involves the power to destroy and this was a bill, the effect of which would be to destroy the states.

When this was pointed out, it developed that the proponents of the bill had "overlooked" the tax and revenue structure of the states. For most of the 50 senators the signature of the petition did not commit them to the bill. But they also surely "overlooked" its revolutionary and destructive effect.

Care-free That, in itself, is old news and not very important. No such bill could pass. But with the world on the verge of a volcano of war, it is alarming to observe the care-free negligence with which legislators trifle with snake-oil remedies and patent medicine proposals to be tried on Uncle Sam the moment some other nations fight and without enough study to learn whether it will pep him up like a monkey gland or throw him into colicky convulsions.

Take the cash and carry provisions as proposed by the Pittman bill—that no American ship can carry passengers or goods to any nation at war. What nation? Suppose we take an extreme case to test the rule—that either Great Britain or Afghanistan declared war against the other. It happened. If it should happen tomorrow American ships couldn't carry freight or passengers to Great Britain and, if the British empire joined, we would have to abandon a large part of our ocean carrying trade.

That is an unlikely, but possible case. Take another nearer probability. The British empire plus France as at war with Germany and Italy. The sea power of the gangster nations has been bottled up in the Mediterranean, the Baltic and the North Sea. But regardless of the slightness or complete absence of any danger whatever, we can't ship to about half the world.

Legislative What earthly sense is there in a policy that gains us nothing in security or anything else, but wipes out our marine carrying trade the moment two other nations decide on war? Apparently whoever devised this second legislative monstrosity also "overlooked" something.

Why wouldn't it serve all purposes simply to say: "The American flag will not protect ships or goods ventured into zones declared by the President to be dangerous. Ship or travel at your own risk." Or, as an alternative—which is better than the Pittman bill even if it isn't good sense—absolutely prohibit our goods and ships in danger zones but let shipping to safe zones proceed at its own risk?

It seems to be open season for untried legislation which may, in practice, do no good and prove utterly destructive. How can we sensibly legislate for a war about which we don't know whether it will be big or little, on land or sea, what nations will fight, and how? There are too many smiths and plumbers rushing in to perform delicate and dangerous surgical operations on the heart of a patient who isn't even sick—yet.

QUESTIONS I'VE BEEN ASKED

—Is Hadassah a Hebrew name?

Yes. It means Myrtle.

Since the 12 tribes of Israel were said to be named after Jacob's sons, how does it happen there was no tribe of Joseph?

The Twelve Tribes were not named after the 12 sons of Jacob. They were named after the following ten sons of Jacob: Reuben, Simeon, Judah, Zebulun, Issachar, Dan, Naphtali, Gad, Asher and Benjamin. And the two sons of Joseph, who were Manasseh and Ephraim.

According to Rashi (renowned commentator on Bible and Talmud) Jacob became angry with his sons, as he felt that Levi was chiefly responsible for the disappearance of Joseph. In view of this great loss and the worry and grief which it caused him, Jacob refused to honor him by naming one of the official tribes after him. Then, to show his great love for Joseph, he named two of the tribes after Joseph's two sons, Manasseh and Ephraim. However, since there were to be only 12 tribes, Joseph had to forego having a tribe named after him. But in reality he was doubly honored because he was, in fact, the father of two tribes, Manasseh and Ephraim.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MC GILL.

COTTON, COLLEGIANS AND CONVENTIONS NEW ORLEANS, La., April 14.—This was quite a day in New Orleans. The cotton manufacturers of America were in session and many Georgians were on the program. The college publicity and college sports paper news and sports editors. Metropolitan opera was in town, along with a half dozen conventions whose guests helped pack the night clubs, cocktail rooms, bars and restaurants.

In addition to all this it was the opening day of the baseball season and some 20,000 or more were scheduled to answer the clarion call of the mayor and appear at the ball park to win the attendance prize.

To a news man trying to dip in at one and all these items of interest including the old reliable opera, "Aida," it was a very warm and trying period.

PLAIN TALK FOR COTTON Cotton delegates heard plain talk. W. N. Banks, of Grantville, Ga., said in part:

"When it comes to merchandising our products we have shown our greatest weakness. I fear we have not yet learned the A B C of merchandising and promotion. Some of our merchandising policies are foolish and are leading to disaster. It is almost incredible but nevertheless true that many of us who are supposedly good businessmen today are selling yarns and cotton goods 1, 2, 3 and 4 cents per pound below cost. We actually are paying the buyers huge sums of money to take our goods."

President of the association, J. M. Cheatham, of Griffin, asked for a tariff on jute; called for one shift in work and not two; asked for a Judge Landis to control the cotton industry and thus bring about co-operation and stifle the fierce individualism which typifies the industry. Of the NLRB he said in part:

"Another of our serious needs is the revision by congress or probably the revamping of the national labor relations act. But only by all other American industries but by all Americans as well. And in this suggestion, I most certainly do not make it speaking for any narrow or petty spirit on the part of our industries, I am speaking for the major part of our industry when I say the members of the American Cotton Manufacturers' Association are not backward but are forward-minded in meeting all of the problems that arise for solution by the exercise of fair play and good citizenship."

Continuing, he voiced what is coming to be the opinion of most Americans, that the labor relations act was passed to promote harmony between employer and employee and that congress expected this result. He said, too, another thing which a majority of Americans believe when he said:

"It is probably true, that if the administration of the act had been placed in the hands of fair, impartial and loyal-minded American citizens, motivated solely by the desire to bring about fair and harmonious working conditions between employers and labor, the act could have been made to work satisfactorily."

"The conclusion is inevitable that the administration of the act was stacked with enough minds that really did not believe in the American principles of government to give its proper functioning a chance. In other words, it was sabotaged by its administrators before it got started."

GOSSET SPEAKS OUT More plain talk was had from B. B. Gossett, of North Carolina.

"I do not subscribe to the doctrine of scarcity," he said. "Effort should never be made to create a scarcity to force up prices or market can absorb should be produced at the lowest possible prices consistent with fair wages and return to capital."

"The government apparently feels that we are not competent to put our own houses in order, that we have over a long period of years demonstrated our incompetency. Surely the time has come to put our houses in order before the government takes over the houses themselves."

Mr. Gossett spoke plainly. He took down his hair, so to speak.

THE COLLEGIANS

Even the collegians were speaking plainly. They heard sports editors and news editors speak on what they thought was wrong with college publicity.

Horace Renegar, of Tulane, a former Associated Press man, has given the college a goal at which to shoot. He landed the national convention for New Orleans. It brought here not merely the college sports publicity men but those who handle college publicity generally. There were men, young men, women and young women. They represented colleges from all sections of the United States.

Out of this meeting, which was the best ever held, according to the unanimous vote of the delegates, ought to come better college news for the newspapers of the nation.

Now, if you are a correspondent or see an opera, attend a few more conventions and talk with a few more men and see the opening game, while longing to see Mr. Earl Mann's Crackers, the day will have been a success.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Red-Headed Daughter

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

My dear Louise:

Alexander Woolcott enjoys good rations. From personal observation, I know that he can do wonders to such homemade fixings as fried chicken, fluffy mashed potatoes and angel food cake. Having a heart as generous as his waistline, which is somewhere in the forties, he also enjoys playing host and providing civilized food to delight his friends.

Now, to one who has a proper respect for food and knows the obligations of a host, the one unpardonable social sin consists in accepting an invitation to dinner and then arriving with no guests.

When people do that to Mr. Woolcott, his temperature doesn't come down to normal for a week.

Yet some people, it seems, not only offend him in that manner, but actually resent his efforts to make them punctual. They don't like being "regimented." This is a free country, they say, and a free citizen has the right to arrive when he pleases him.

That attitude must be rather common, for Mr. Woolcott Gibbs, in a series of magazine articles, mentions several Woolcott guests who feel that way about punctuality, and seems to sympathize with them instead of their host. "Other people," he says, "have also objected to having their lives so arbitrarily arranged."

How quickly life in the great metropolis can decay manners and destroy the effect of good breeding!

Do you know the nature and purpose of good manners? They are not a mere ornament, but a necessity. They are needed to smooth the rough edges in a crowded world. An act is necessary because a particular situation would be disagreeable without it. And always and everywhere, good manners consist in being considerate of another's feelings and welfare. To inconvenience, trouble or distress others is plain low-bred rudeness.

When you are invited to dine, the host does his best to please you. He is like a servant catering to a master. Linen, silver, decorations, food—all are the finest he is able to provide. He honors you. And he and all who assist him work together anxiously watching the clock, to have the food ready

World Gets the Jitters as Hitler Nears 50

A jittery world anxiously awaits Adolf Hitler's message in Berlin next Thursday at the celebration of his 50th birthday as the Reichsfuehrer surveys progress being made by Britain and France in their "stop-Hitler" drive, from his Berchtesgaden estate. This is a specially posed photograph which arrived aboard the Bremen yesterday in New York and was telephoned to Atlanta.

That is the danger which is facing our great country today. We are getting further and further away from the dual principle of government; further and further away from the past proven safety that lies in the absolute separation of the executive, legislative and judicial departments.

Strickland to Speak. "Now the really serious feature to all of us about this is the apparently covert and planned procedure to gradually destroy the sovereignty of our states in favor of a government centralized at Washington."

"I do not believe this is what the majority of the American people want, but, if it is, the honest way is to present it to them by hidden trickery in statutes." Cheatham claimed the south had been denied proper representation on the textile industry committee through "naming of 14 of the 21 members from northern states and only seven from the south."

Because of this, he said, "I therefore contend that the minimum wage was fixed last September 13 when the committee was appointed, and not on March 20 as you have been advised." The convention concludes tomorrow night. The principal speeches tomorrow will be by Dr. C. T. Murchison, president of the Cotton-Textile Institute, Inc., of New York, and Robert Strickland, president of the Trust Company of Atlanta, Ga.

NAZIS CALL F. D. R. A 'WAR AGITATOR'

Says President Wants To Open a 'Holy Crusade' Against Germans.

BERLIN, April 14.—(AP)—An officially-inspired German commentary declared tonight that "War Agitator Roosevelt" wants to "Open a 'holy crusade' against the German people."

The bitter reaction to President Roosevelt's Pan-American speech was published in Deutsche Dienst amid strong indications that the United States was rapidly being given a place alongside Britain on the Nazi list of enemies.

"There is no necessity of arousing the American people with all kinds of devilish tricks of agitation into war fever against us," said the commentary, which is distributed by DNB, German official news agency.

Call F. D. R. Meddler.

"And Roosevelt would like to open a 'holy crusade' against the German people even before it is declared."

"For that reason his 'cookie-pusher' diplomats already must wander around in full war regalia with gas masks in order to impart the creeps to the American people by force."

Foreign office circles earlier had accused Mr. Roosevelt of "meddling" in matters which didn't concern him.

Deutsche Dienst said that while Premier Mussolini and Reichsfuehrer Hitler were endeavoring to "offset the unrest sowed by the western democracies through a new and just order in Europe, Roosevelt is seeking anew to support the tottering front of injustice by his hate."

Assail U. S. Aims.

"Roosevelt holds up Pan-American union before European nations as an example of the national community of American lands," it continued.

"Allegedly, only pure peace and harmony has reigned among these American nations."

"One asks: How can the head of a state express such nonsense?"

"All the more so because the United States in the last 40 years alone has undertaken and carried out 16 armed and warlike invasions in Latin-American countries."

Turning to the President's promise of help to Canada, Deutsche Dienst said it has not yet been forgotten it was the United States which "had annexation desires on Canada."

Navy To Hold War Games.

With the high chief of the German propaganda machine, Paul Joseph Goebbels, back in Berlin after a vacation in the near east, informed circles expected new vigor to be shown in the press campaign against the United States and Britain.

Meanwhile the Reich's expanding naval forces prepared for war games next week almost under the guns of the British fortress at Gibraltar. A communique said, however, the move had nothing to do with the current political situation.

Berlin serenely went ahead with preparations for Chancellor Hitler's birthday celebration next Thursday. The chancellor is at his Berchtesgaden estate where he undoubtedly received prompt reports of President Roosevelt's Pan-American Union speech today.

(The President pledged American economic support to any American country threatened by "economic pressure" from abroad and condemned aggression as "criminal").

The immediate reaction was that Roosevelt was "meddling," as one Nazi put it, in a sector far from home and that his statements were based on a "misunderstanding."

"The United States is making the very same mistake as is England—meddling in Germany's affairs which do not concern them," one German official commented. "What right, for example, does the United States have to try to prevent us from making an economic treaty with Rumania that benefits either side?"

Call F. D. R. "Meddler."

In other Nazi circles it was asserted that Roosevelt "clearly revealed himself as the master wire-puller behind the anti-German encirclement policy."

A dispatch of the official news agency of American relief was headed "God's Own Country Now Satan's Country."

"What we want is a Monroe Doctrine in southeastern Europe and it is not for America to meddle in it," one Wilhelmstrasse source said. "We want no more and no less than the United States claims under her Monroe Doctrine."

The view was expressed in these quarters that Rumania and Greece accepted Britain's offer of protection because they feared to offend Britain by rejecting it.

Silent on Poland.

There was silence on the Reich's relations with Poland, although the press carried short reports that the Polish foreign minister, Joseph Beck, was planning a trip to Paris.

Official circles still professed belief Poland would never sign an alliance with Britain. (Poland and Britain concluded an interim defensive alliance, but technical discussions are scheduled before it is made formal and permanent).

So firm is this belief that it aroused speculation as to whether Hitler was not holding up his sleeve a trump which he considered strong enough to convince Poland it had better not sign.

The German fleet will sail for its war games April 18.

A communique said more than 25 units, from battleships to submarines, would visit ports of Spain, Portugal, Tangier and Spanish Morocco.

They Discuss Wage and Hour Legislation

Taking prominent part in discussions on wage and hour legislation at Atlanta Athletic Club last night were, left to right, Elmer F. Andrews, wage-hour administrator; Chief Justice Charles S. Reid, of the Georgia supreme court; and Dean James M. Landis, of Harvard University law school, former head of the SEC.

working time cannot be checked. The wages and hours division will be liberal on the forms of records kept by employers as long as they satisfy government curiosity.

Lumber and brick manufactured for local construction are not considered within the law, but the brick and lumber problem in the southeast is now being investigated by squads of inspectors.

Questioners were warned that all answers given by Andrews in moot sessions, as the one last night, must not be accepted as final rulings.

"Please don't blame me if I tell you something here tonight and you get into a jam in the courts later," warned Andrews. "Very often, I decide questions on the way at a meeting like this and catch the very dickens from my legal counsel when I get back to Washington."

Landis on Program.

Andrews shared the stage last night with Dean James M. Landis, former chairman of the Securities Exchange Commission and now dean of Harvard University's law school. The meeting at the Atlanta Athletic Club was the first of a two-day session of the Atlanta Institute of Labor Law, sponsored by the Emory University Law School, with the cooperation of the Atlanta Bar Association. Associate sponsors were the Lawyers Club of Atlanta, the University of Georgia Law School, Mercer University Law School, Georgia Bar Association and the State Bar Association of the southeastern states.

Lawyers, judges, law students, law teachers and members of the public at large in all southern states were invited to the sessions, which will continue this morning with discussions by J. Warren Madden, chairman of the National Labor Relations Board, Congressman Robert Ramspeck and Pope F. Brock, Atlanta attorney.

Labor Law Evaluation.

Dean Landis opened the night's session with a detailed description of the evolution of the labor law in the United States, tracing its history from the first organization of labor through to today's increasing problems. Andrews' speech discussed the reasons for the enactment of the wages and hours law, concluding with the warning that if the act fails "for any reason, the people will demand, and probably get, a much more drastic measure."

"Expectance to date," he said, "encourages us to believe we are going to encounter no insurmountable difficulty in enforcement. . . . It is because I am so deeply convinced that the battle has been won in public opinion that I believe the principal task is going to be the policing of the marginal areas. It is the irresponsible operator, and especially the fugitive from state regulation, who has been causing our major headaches."

Landis Applauded.

Members of the audience had been invited by Director E. Smythe Gambrell, of the institute, to question either Landis or Andrews at the conclusion of their addresses. Landis, applauded warmly for the colorful history he traced for the lawyers, was allowed to sit down without having questions submitted to him. They were all saved for Andrews, who took them in stride.

Here was one: "If an employer has been paying $25 a week, at the rate of 50 cents an hour for a 50-hour week and his work week is reduced to 44 hours, must he pay the $25 wage, at the rate of 25 divided by 44, or continue to pay 44 hours at the rate of 50 cents an hour?"

Seasonal Exemptions.

Answer: The basic wage would be 50 cents.

Question: "What are those seasonal exemptions?"

Answer: The seasonal exemption is based on the perishability of products being handled, such as fruits and vegetables that are being canned, and does not apply to businesses, such as jewelry business, where the seasonal market is increased at Christmas.

Question: "If a woman buys a sheet at a store for $1, works 12 hours on it making it into a spread which she sells for $2, has she violated the law by not earning 25 cents an hour?"

Answer: She has. Andrews, however, evaded the question as to who was the violator.

Andrews throughout his answering of the question indicated to his audience that he was merely applying the law of reason to his weighing of questions.

SALARIES UNPAID, TEACHERS STRIKE

Pennsylvania Instructors' Walkout Presents 5,400 Pupils With Holiday.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., April 14.—(AP) Declaring their funds and credit have been exhausted, 186 school teachers in Northumberland and Schuylkill counties left classrooms today, vowing "not to return" until they are paid long overdue salaries.

More than 5,400 pupils in 22 schools looked forward to an indefinite "holiday." The walkout culminated months of efforts by the teachers to collect their salaries.

Officials and the teachers were agreed the school districts' financial difficulty resulted from inability to collect taxes. Anthracite companies are major taxpayers. The largest company, being reorganized under the bankruptcy laws, owes $959,000.

WHISKY DISTILLERY GIVEN APPROVAL OF COUNCIL BODY

Company Would Use Georgia-Grown Products and Have Weekly Pay Roll of $1,500.

A new industry for Atlanta moved a step nearer realization last night when the police committee of city council recommended approval of the Georgia Growers' Distilling Company's application to erect a $250,000 plant on Milton avenue, near McDonough boulevard.

Backers of the distillery said the plant would manufacture 316,000 cases of corn whiskey and peach brandy a year, using Georgia-grown products, and that between 60 and 65 persons would be employed. The weekly pay roll will approximate $1,500.

More than 1,000 carloads of Georgia fruit and 100 carloads of grain would be used annually, it was said. Contracts have been let for construction of the plant, subject to council approval, it was also stated.

J. F. Moessner, of Cleveland, Ohio, head of two distilleries there, was listed as president, and J. C. McAuliffe, of Atlanta, as secretary of the company. McAuliffe is a former Augusta postmaster and now editor of a highway journal. Clarence H. Calhoun is counsel for the company.

The police committee also requested the finance committee to appropriate $500 for printing 50,000 booklets containing the rules of the city, for distribution to citizens.

Other business last night included renewing licenses of taxicab drivers, and granting the Boy Scouts permission to erect a temporary sign on the flagpole at Five Points.

Councilman C. M. (Mac) Bolen, chairman, presided.

FIRM AGREES TO HALT ADVERTISING CLAIMS

WASHINGTON, April 14.—(AP) Keystone Laboratories, Inc., has agreed with the Federal Trade Commission to discontinue certain representations when advertising its products.

The company, with headquarters in Memphis, also trades as Memphis Mail Order House and Curio Products Company and White Line.

The commission said the agreement provides that the company "will discontinue representing that Poreen Ointment, La Jac Lovin' Pink Cream for dark skin or La Jac Orange Beauty Glow Cream are skin food or skin whiteners; that other of its products eliminate wrinkles."

The company also agreed, the commission said, to stop representing "that La Jac Brite Skin Bleach will overnight or in any stated time make the skin five shades lighter or that Lucky Mojo, Good Luck Incense, Hindoo Mystic Love Perfume, Holy Oil with live loadstone, or High John the Conqueror Root and similar products bring good luck, love, romance, power, life inspiration, easy money or irresistibility."

Mr. Roosevelt spoke in the hall of the Americas at the Pan-American building, standing at the head of a great oval table, about which were seated the ambassadors and ministers of the 21 American republics to the south. Secretary Hull introduced him with a simple "Gentlemen of the governing board, the President of the United States."

The chief executive began by observing that while "much of the world finds hope dim and difficult," the Americas face a "troubled world in serenity and calm" because they are a "co-operative group" which has learned to promote its civilization by a "system of peace."

New World Ideal. The theme of the American community of nations in working out its destiny in friendship was not "good fortune" or "accident," he continued, but the result of "a new and powerful ideal—that of the community of nations."

"We hold our conferences not as rivals in arms, but as the result of our will to peace," he said, adding that abroad such meetings as the Pan-American conference came only after a major war had brought "exhaustion and defeat."

Quoting from a speech he himself delivered at Buenos Aires in 1936, he reassured confidence that the republics of the New World can help the Old World "avert the catastrophe which impends." The President added:

"There is no fatality which forces the Old World towards new catastrophes. Men are not prisoners of fate, but only prisoners of their own minds. They have within themselves the power to become free at any moment."

Reference to Dictators. Then came the paragraph referring directly to Hitler and Mussolini. Mr. Roosevelt noted that "only a few days ago the head of a great nation (Mussolini) referred to his country as a 'prisoner' of the Mediterranean," and that "a little later, another chief of state" (Hitler) spoke of "a threat and an encirclement."

He added his statement concerning the impossibility of encircling a peaceful nation by peaceful nations.

The American peace which we celebrate today has no quality of weakness in it," he said, concluding, "We are prepared to maintain it, and to defend it to the fullest extent of our strength, matching force to force if any attempt is made to subvert our institutions, or to impair the independence of any one of our group."

Economic Support. "Should the method of attack be that of economic pressure, I pledge strength of Pan-Americanism at this time of European crisis."

Joao Carlos Muniz, chief adviser to Brazilian Foreign Minister Oswaldo Aranha, said especially striking was Mr. Roosevelt's reference to matching force with force in warning against any aggression against the United States or her neighbors.

Rio de Janeiro newspapers published extra editions and eager readers bought them up quickly.

Cites American Peace. As an object lesson for the troubled nations of Europe, President Roosevelt held out the results on this side of the Atlantic of the ideal of a "community of nations" and economic co-operation, which he said had kept the many countries of the Americas on terms of friendship.

"If that process can be successful here, it is too much to hope that a similar intellectual and spiritual process may succeed elsewhere," the President asked. "Do we really have to assume that nations can find no better methods of realizing their destinies than those which were used by the Huns and Vandals 1,500 years ago?"

And he referred directly to the recent utterances of Chancellor Hitler and Premier Mussolini on European developments, particularly the negotiation of an anti-aggression alliance by France and Great Britain.

"There is no such thing as encircling or threatening, or imprisoning any peaceful nation by other peaceful nations," he said. "We

POLLARD TURMAN.

COUNSEL IS NAMED FOR RESERVE BANK

Pollard Turman Selected as Legal Assistant to President Parker.

Pollard Turman, young Atlanta attorney, was named as counsel of the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta at a directors' meeting yesterday.

Turman will serve under Robert S. Parker, president, and as legal assistant to Mr. Parker, who was the bank's general counsel for many years.

Turman was born in Atlanta October 7, 1911, and received his primary and high school education in the public schools. He attended Emory University and received his LL. B. degree from Emory Law school. He will assume his new duties May 1.

He was admitted to practice in February, 1935, and spent a year as an assistant of Solicitor General John A. Boykin. For the last three years he has been with the firm of Jones, Powers & Williams.

Turman is a nephew of the late Governor John Garland Pollard, of Virginia. Active in many phases of the city's life, he is superintendent of the young people's department of the First Baptist church and a former deacon of the church. He is a member of the Chi Phi fraternity.

NEW JOBLESS AID PLAN GIVEN OKAY

Senate Group Approves Bill To Set Up Permanent Relief System.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—(AP) Legislation to end the present emergency relief program and set up a permanent, unified system of aid to the jobless won tentative approval today of the senate unemployment committee.

Members of the committee said they were in general accord on major provisions of the measure, which would establish a new "public works agency" and liberalize existing social security benefits. A formal vote will be taken tomorrow.

Chairman Byrnes, Democrat, South Carolina, sponsor of the measure, said he was hopeful the senate would act on it next week. Majority Leader Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky, told reporters it would be given a preferred position on the calendar.

The bill—regarded by many in congress as the most ambitious effort thus far to provide a permanent solution to the unemployment problem—would wipe out such administrative agencies as the WPA, the PWA, the CCC, the National Youth Administration, the Bureau of Public Roads and the public buildings division of the Treasury and would turn their activities over to the newly-created public works agency.

"It should bring wonderful economies," Byrnes told reporters. The bill provides for allocation of relief money to states under a fixed formula based 50 per cent on population and 50 per cent on unemployment. States with less-than-average per capita incomes would receive a larger proportionate share of federal funds.

The states would be required to finance at least one-third of the total cost of all projects within their boundaries, but could pick the type of projects they wished.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—(AP)—President Roosevelt definitely lined up today with those who argue that in numbering the Presidents of the United States, Grover Cleveland should be counted only once although his two terms were separated by a four-year interregnum.

In his speech at Mount Vernon, he referred to himself as the thirty-first President. Some reference books list him as the thirty-second, because they count Cleveland as two Presidents.

In the past, there has been considerable controversy as to whether Cleveland should be counted once or twice.

CHICAGO, April 14.—(AP)—James M. Slattery, close adviser of Governor Henry Horner and chairman of the Illinois commerce commission, accepted his appointment to the United States senate today with a pledge of support for "the great humanitarian principles and objectives of the Democratic national administration."

The Governor selected the new senator—a stocky, soft-spoken man of 60—to fill the seat vacated last Sunday by the death of the picturesque Senator James Hamilton Lewis.

He will hold the post until November, 1940, when a senator to serve out the balance of Lewis' term, extending to 1942, will be chosen in the general election.

May Be a Candidate. Asked if the appointment meant he would be a candidate then, he replied: "Presumably it does, but let's wait and see."

Slattery assumed an important position in Democratic ranks in 1936. At that time he managed the Cook county (Chicago) phase of Governor Horner's campaign for re-nomination. He also directed the campaign of Senator Scott W. Lucas in the same ballcock last year. In both primaries the Horner forces defeated aspirants backed by the Chicago organization of Mayor Edward J. Kelly.

Slattery had a hand in resolving differences between the party's factions subsequently and supported Mayor Kelly's successful bid for re-election last April 4.

"It shall be my aim to merit the trust placed in me by Governor Horner by striving to represent the people in the same sincere and conscientious manner as that which marked the service of my distinguished predecessor, Senator James M. Lewis," Slattery stated today.

"I intend, as Senator from Illinois, to do all in my power to help advance the great humanitarian principles and objectives of the Democratic national administration."

During his three years as head of the commerce commission reductions in utility rates representing a saving of $23,000,000 a year to Illinois consumers have been effected.

Object to Soviet Land Forces. Because of Polish and Rumanian objections to their territory being defended by a Russian land force, the French were reported to have suggested that the Russian air fleet alone be used against Germany if Germany were to attack either Poland or Rumania.

Rumania and Poland, under this scheme, would be asked to permit the Russians to use their airports. Military experts were said to believe that the Russian air fleet, backed by Russian planes, would be able to prolong a war on the eastern front while Britain and France were co-ordinating their attack on the west.

Rumania and Poland were represented as objecting to Russian support because part of the territory of each once belonged to Russia, and they feared that if a Russian army again occupied the land, even as an ally, she never would give it up.

Seek Soviet Air Support. Both Polish and Rumanian officials realized that neither Britain nor France was in a position to lend immediate support to their nations if Germany were to attack them.

"If it occurred tomorrow," David Lloyd George, war-time prime minister, warned Chamberlain, "you could not send a single battalion to Poland."

Many experts agreed with Lloyd George and for that reason there were hopes the support of at least the Russian air fleet could be gained.

Kennedy Sees Chamberlain. Through one official spoke of the possibility of an early agreement with Russia, there were fears in other quarters that Russia would resent the suggestion her air fleet was wanted but not her army.

The prime minister and Mrs. Chamberlain left No. 10 Downing street in the morning for Chequers after Ambassador Kennedy called. They will go to Windsor Castle tomorrow to spend a day and a night with King George VI and Queen Elizabeth.

Kennedy listened to the broadcast of President Roosevelt's speech after the meeting with the prime minister.

On the other hand, those opposing the canal said the canal vote did not mean much. They said three committee members recorded for the bill—Representatives Angell, Republican, Oregon; Pittenger, Republican, Minnesota; and Barden, Democrat, North Carolina—reserved the right to oppose the measure in the house.

While Green was optimistic over the possibility of an early house vote, Mansfield said there was no prospect of immediate consideration.

Follows Markham Plans. Under the Mansfield bill, the canal would be constructed whenever congress made funds available—in accordance with plans detailed in the 1937 report of Major General Edward M. Markham, then chief of army engineers.

Markham, who reversed adverse findings of the War Department's board of engineers, recommended a canal 400 feet wide and 23 feet deep from the mouth of the St. Johns river to a point on the Gulf near Yankeetown.

The former engineer chief, now head of a Chicago dredging concern, placed the total cost at $197,000,000. The board had estimated dimensions would cost $263,000,000. Mansfield's bill set no limit on how much might be appropriated for the canal.

PONCE DE LEON PARK, April 14.—If Ponce de Leon were living today and chanced to see the Cracker ball club, he would agree the baseball park had been given the proper name. It's really a fountain of baseball youth.

And yet, if the famous Spaniard glanced at the roster of the Chattanooga Lookouts, he might become confused. It would have to be explained to him that they were the old men of the Lookout mountains. And that they are just visiting for a few days. Joe Engel would be pointed out as Rip Van Winkle on a vacation.

Opening day in baseball—in fact, the baseball season—lends a glamorous, colorful and hearty tinge to the American scene. In far-off Europe many peoples are heartsick at the threatening spectacle of war. Empires cast their support solidly behind other smaller countries.

But here in the land of the free, the American people put their support solidly behind baseball. They fashion their heroes and worship at the shrine of the base hit.

And so it was at Ponce de Leon park today. It was interesting to see hundreds walk briskly and happily through the gates two and even three hours in advance of the game, pick out select grandstand seats and watch their favorites go through the motions of pitching and catching, batting and fielding.

The conversation of the fans rolls in waves, through the stands, mingling with the steady cries of the vendors—"Hey, soft drinks . . . Get your lineups . . . Right off the ice . . . Peanuts, popcorn, crackjack."

Newsboys have forgotten the European situation and remind the crowd that "Crackers play Chattanooga today. Read all about it." And the sale is good. Fans buy papers to see what the writers think is going to happen and compare it later with what actually did take place.

An hour before game time the empty grandstand seats begin to fill rapidly. Holders of box seats come more leisurely. They are sure of seats.

The "Sun Gods"—backbone of baseball—are packed densely in the left-field bleachers. They have a real interest, some of them, in such things as fly balls, two-base hits, etc.

Judge John Cone just came in. That makes opening day official. L. V. Hughes, who hasn't missed an opener since the Crackers began playing, entered the stands. Scattered through the crowd were many old-line fans who have grown up with the game here.

President Trammell Scott might have been the very first arrival for all anybody knows. He came around noon, to have a final consultation with engineers, and remained.

Brilliant sunny weather favored the opening day game and fans were taking full advantage of it to greet a new opening day. Baseball this year is celebrating its 100th anniversary and all over the land it promises to be a banner year for the national pastime.

THE FIRST MEETING.

It was about 1 o'clock that the Cracker player gathered in the clubhouse for their first meeting of the new season. It was a calm, matter-of-fact meeting. Manager Paul Richards went over signals and the Chattanooga hitters and now they then asked questions.

The meeting ran something like this—"Uh, the first thing

ATTENDANCE CUP IS WON BY PELS

22,069 Fans See New Orleans Whip Barons, 1 to 0.

By The Associated Press.
The Southern association, one of baseball's oldest leagues, served up two close games, a walkaway and a tie while starting its 39th season yesterday before some 53,000 baseball-hungry customers.

New Orleans gained a two-way triumph by putting a leadoff on the opening day attendance trophy with a crowd of 22,069 while winning a 13-inning, 1-0 thriller from Birmingham.

Three Governors—Cooper of Tennessee, White of Mississippi and Bailey of Arkansas—joined 7,500 constituents in whooping it up at Memphis while Little Rock nipped the home club, 4-2.

Atlanta's league champions made the day a huge success for 15,311 home folks by walloping Chattanooga, 7-1, with a long range attack capped by Manager Paul Richards' towering home run.

Nashville and Knoxville kept a congregation of 8,000 on edge for 12 frames before they finally had to call it a day because of darkness in the 12th with the count knotted at 8-8.

Luman Harris Gives Chattanooga 7 Hits

Paul Richards Clouts Tremendous Home Run; Crackers Rout Chambers in Fourth.

By JACK TROY.
extra-base hits. John Rucker, who roams from county to county in center; Malibo, Rubeling and Harris hit doubles, while Bolling tripled and Richards hit the homer.

Richards started off last season by hitting four homers in two days against Knoxville here. And he seems to have his eye on the horsehide at this time.

The speed and hustle of the young Cracker club made the Lookouts appear a bit slow by comparison. And yet the Lookouts, as a club, have some speed.

LUCAS UP TODAY.
Red Lucas, former major leaguer, will oppose the Crackers in the second game of the series this afternoon. Manager Paul Richards is undecided as to whether Larry Miller, Pete Stein or Clyde Smoll will go to the firing line for the Crackers.

Fires broke out in two spots just as the game got under way yesterday. And shortly fire broke out in the Cracker lineup and the Lookouts, with the exception of two innings, couldn't get them out.

Colorful pre-game ceremonies added to the gala opening day program.

BOLLING TRIPLES.
Bolling bounced a triple off the signs to start the ball rolling in the first inning. Anderson hit a long fly to left and Bolling scored after the catch.

In the second inning, Manager Richards hit one of the long home runs a right-hander ever hit at Ponce de Leon. He blasted a line drive over the top of the signs in right—a wallop of more than 400 feet. Rucker followed with a double to left, but was left on base when Rubeling fanned and Peters and Harris grounded out.

The Crackers scored again in the third, Bolling led off with a sharp single to left. After Anderson filed to Rose, Malibo hit a fly back of third base. Benjamin started after the ball too late and Malibo got a double out of it. Bolling stopped at third. When Burge grounded to Hooks, Bolling scored.

Came the fourth and the Crackers were still at it. Rucker walked. Then Rubeling drove a double down the left field line and Rucker, stretching out, scored from first. Pritchett relieved Chambers. Peters sacrificed and Harris fanned. Pritchett walked Bolling and Anderson and Malibo rolled out to Hooks; uninterested.

BURGE FALLS FLAT.
The Crackers extended themselves a bit in the fifth and scored twice. Burge drew a walk. The hit and run was put on and Burge fell flat on the base paths as a rifle shot whistled past his ear. Arising, he scampered to third. Richards stayed at first. Letcher threw wild at second on Rucker's grounder and Burge and Richards scored. Rucker went to second. He took third on Rubeling's sacrifice but expired when Peters grounded out and Harris lined to Cuyler.

Averaging a run an inning, the Crackers skipped the sixth and tallied again in the seventh. Burge cracked a single to right and Richards sacrificed. Rucker was called out on strikes but Rubeling came through with a single to right, scoring Burge. Peters flied to Cuyler.

The Lookouts finally got a run in the eighth—the hard way. Barnes batted for Pritchett and singled through the box. Hitchcock fouled out to Bolling. Letcher smashed a single to center and Barnes stopped at third. He scored after the catch of Hooks' deep fly to right.

Cuyler cracked a double off the signs with one out in the ninth, but both Benjamin and Galvin went out to end the opener. It was a brilliant piece of pitching for Harris and a grand start for the Crackers.

HORSE SHOW SET THIS AFTERNOON

Roxboro Riding Club Site of Annual Event; Trophies Offered.

By ROY WHITE.
Atlanta's annual junior horse show will be held at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Roxboro Riding Club. The show is being sponsored by the R. L. Hope Parent-Teachers' Association, and the only one in the year in which the juniors will have full sway.

Trophies and ribbons will be given to the winners in each event and the program calls for more than a dozen classes for the youngsters to show their riding ability.

In addition to the junior events three special events are on the program for adults only. The adult classes are the open three-gaited, the open five-gaited and a fine harness class.

Young horsemen throughout the city have been working several weeks with their mounts preparing for today's big event.

Some weeks ago a special horse show was presented at the Simmons' Riding Academy at Decatur, but due to the cold weather

Fulton High Rout Southwest DeKalb

Fulton High ran wild to beat Southwest DeKalb, 14 to 1, Friday afternoon on the DeKalb diamond.

Dickey and Milton led Fulton's hitting with three hits each, while Scruggs got two for three.

Spruill limited DeKalb to only four hits.

What'll you bet the Giants don't divide their 1940 training chores between Havana and Miami?

Atlanta Dogs Stand Up Well in First Day's Show Events

CHAMPION DOG OF U. S. ENTERED IN KENNEL SHOW

Ferry Von Raufhelsen Is Favored To Be Best of Show Tonight.

By TOM McRAE.
Atlanta dogs stood up well yesterday as the first day's events were run off in the Atlanta Kennel Club's 27th annual show, sponsored by The Constitution.

If a home-town dog wins, the finest bench show dog in the country must be beaten. He is Ferry von Raufhelsen of Giralda, a Doberman Pinscher.

Mrs. Hartley Dodge, one of the automobile heirs, recently purchased Ferry von Raufhelsen of Giralda from the Giralda farms for approximately fifteen thousand dollars ($15,000). The Ferry has compiled one of the finest records in canine history.

He went best in show at Westminster, then followed this up with best-in-show victories at Rochester, Detroit, Chicago and Columbus, Ohio. These are the last five shows in which the Ferry has been entered.

ATLANTA DOGS.
Several Atlanta dogs are expected to furnish more than a little competition. In the working group there are two exceptionally fine boxers—I. J. Osburn's Dimple of Tulgey Wood and Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Adams' Erik v. Luisenbeck. Another fine boxer is Hermes v. Uracher-Wassner, of Sumbula, which went best in show at Chattanooga.

Mrs. Wallace Pfeuffer's Pfeuffer's Lisa is considered by dog experts a serious threat in any show. Pfeuffer's Lisa is a female dachshund and is one of the favorites to win the hound group.

In the non-sporting group Miss Catherine Erwin's standard poodle, Gadabout of Misty Isles, is expected to make a fine showing. William Kallist's Hallowell Band and Baume will be a strong contender for the terrier group title.

Yesterday's events were run off splendidly, with Edgar A. Moss superintending. The turnout was large, but a far greater number is expected to be on hand today, especially tonight. At 8 o'clock the group winners will be named and immediately following will be the climax event—judging of best in show.

CHILDREN'S HANDLING.
One of the most amusing classes was the children's handling. Marian Wetner, showing a wire terrier, was first among the girls; and Harriett Jordan, showing a wire terrier, was second, with Barbara Higginsbottom, showing a collie, third.

Q. Ball won the boys' division with an English bulldog. Other participants were Bill Middleton, Frank Weaver and Bernard Neal.

Miss Gay B. Shepperson, state WPA administrator, has an entry in the show; also Lieutenant W. B. Kungitz, the fencing star on the American Olympic team; and Trammell Scott had duties elsewhere yesterday afternoon, but he came down last night.

Warren Team Plays
Chicopee '9' Today

Warren's baseball team will battle the Chicopee Mills nine at Gainesville at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Sunday Covington will furnish the opposition here with Lefty Rucker slated to pitch for Warren.

GOSH, OLD FELLOW, DO THE OTHERS LOOK THAT BAD TO YOU?

One of the approximately 500 dogs entered in the Atlanta Kennel Club Show which started yesterday at the city auditorium and will end tonight, is the Irish bull, Basford Playboy, shown above with Mrs. Courtney Shropshire Jr., of Birmingham. The dog is owned by Celesta Haynes, of Birmingham. Basford Playboy's expression indicates he could think of a number of places he'd rather be than at a dog show.

Georgia, L. S. U. and 2 Duke Golfers Gain Athens Semi-Finals

WADDELL, SOPH, GIVES BULLDOGS CHANCE FOR CUP

Jack Cook Beaten, 5-3, After Upsetting the Medalist, Alexander.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.
ATHENS, Ga., April 14.—Curley-headed Henry Castillo, L. S. U. favorite, advanced to the semi-finals of the fifth annual Southern Intercollegiate golf tournament here today with two smashing 18-hole match play victories.

Georgia Tech's Jack Cook, surprise 2 and 1 victor over medalist Skip Alexander, of Duke, in the morning round, fell before the sub-par stroking of the L. S. U. star, who fired a two-under-71 to win, 5 and 3. Castillo defeated Bill Burke, of Alabama, 5 and 4, in the first round.

The popular Spaniard from Tampa, Fla., was joined by two Duke players and one dark horse from Georgia in the semi-finals. Elliott Waddell, No. 4 man on the Bulldog team, advanced with one-up victories over both Lee Ramsey, of L. S. U., and Guy Berner, of Duke. He plays Castillo tomorrow morning in the upper bracket.

ALL-DUKE BRACKET.
Joe Taylor and Bob Brownell make up an all-Duke lower bracket. Taylor defeated Georgia's Sonny Swift, 2 and 1, yesterday morning and came back with a one-up victory over Emil Zachariah, of L. S. U., in the afternoon. Brownell eliminated Tommy Nicol, of Alabama, 1 up and then trounced Henry Russell, of Duke, 3 and 1.

Finals will be played tomorrow afternoon and Castillo and Brownell are expected to play for the title, which was not defended this year by Tommy Barnes, of Tech. Taylor pulled the biggest comeback to win his match from Zachariah, one down going to the 16th. Taylor fired birdies to win the next two holes. He then shot another birdie on the long 18th to halve the hole and win the match.

The long-driving Castillo had the best rounds of the day. He was two under par for the 15 holes played in his match with Cook. They finished out the round and he came in still two under.

COOK CARDS 74.
The Yellow Jacket star was constantly out-driven from the tees and was three down at the turn. Still he shot a 74, only one over par.

Waddell and Berner were all square at the turn. The bespectacled Bulldog was one over par while his opponent had a stroke less.

The survivors are left from a field of 16 which started play yesterday morning. Five Duke players, three from L. S. U. and Alabama, two from Georgia and one each from Georgia Tech and North Carolina made up the championship flight.

The Davidson entry, Ray Pittman, went out in the first round before the stroking of Zachariah, 1 up. Russell beat H. Boyd, of North Carolina, 1 up on the 19th. Berner whipped Edgar Hudson, of Alabama, also by the score of 1 up in the first round.

Results of lower flights.
Second Flight: First round, Herring, North Carolina, beat Kirkland, Georgia, default; Crow, Duke, beat Bower, Georgia, 1 up on 18th; Dudley, Georgia, beat Rupert, Alabama, default; Miller, Duke, beat Patterson, L. MACON LOSSES, 11-7.
The Elmira Pioneers of the Eastern league today collected 17 hits off three Macon pitchers to win the opener of a three-game exhibition series, 11-7. The teams play again at 3:30 p. m. (E. S. T.) tomorrow with Lefty Joe Baker of Macon opposing Manuel Norris on the mound.

Crackers' Fielding Features Opener

There were several fielding features on the Cracker side in yesterday's opener with Chattanooga. One was the Anderson-Belling play in the fifth. Ted Fritchett bounced a grounder which Belling tipped with his glove as he leaped. Anderson raced over and threw Fritchett out as Belling bounded back to the base.

Lumain Harris twice covered first faultlessly on throws from Belling on difficult plays. And Russ Peters, in the ninth, took Eddie Rose's grounder in deep short and threw him out.

There was only one error on the Cracker side. Russ Peters threw wild at first in the second on Cuyler's grounder. He played brilliantly the rest of the way.

JACKETS LOSE TO AUBURN, 5-2

AUBURN, Ala., April 14.—An outburst of three runs in the seventh inning that featured a home run to center by Carl Happer smashed a 2-2 tie and gave Auburn a 5-2 win over Georgia Tech on Drake field at Auburn Friday in the opening of a two-game series that ushered the Tigers into Southeastern conference warfare for this year. Final game between the Tigers and Yellow Jackets will be played on the local diamond Saturday afternoon, starting at 2:30.

The large gathering of fans gave the Tigers the usual seventh inning "stretch" ovation and pleaded for the count to be untied, and Red Caudill, Frenchy Gunter, Doug Bennett and Happer did not let them down. Caudill led off with a single, moved to third on Gunter's hit-and-run bingle and scored on Bennett's infield out to second. Gunter came home on Happer's circuit clout.

A four-base rap allowed the losers to draw first blood and forge into the lead with a couple of markers in the second. Howard Burpo connected for Tech's round-trip blow that scored Bud Gilmer. G. TECH ab.h.p.a. AUBURN ab.h.p.a.

Athens High Takes Invitation Track Meet

MONROE, Ga., April 14.—Much interest was centered in an invitation track meet held here today with teams representing Greensboro, Athens, Monroe, Dacula, Jefferson, Grayson and Commerce competing for honors in the different events.

Athens High school's boys, led by Nunnally and Moseman, emerged with the victory with 32 1-2 points, closely followed by Greensboro, 27 4-5 points; Monroe, the host team, finished in third place with 13 4-5 points, followed by Commerce, 8 points; Grayson, 4 2-5 points; Jefferson, 1 4-5 points; Dacula, 1 1-2 points.

Monty Stratton Signed as Coach By Chisox Team

CHICAGO, April 14.—(AP)—Monty Stratton, star of the 1938 Chicago White Sox pitching staff who lost his right leg in a hunting accident last winter, was signed as a coach today by President J. Louis Comiskey.

The 26-year-old hurler, who still hopes to pitch again, will be a "regular, fulltime coach," Comiskey said in keeping his promise to see that Stratton has employment with the White Sox as long as he wants it. Manager Jimmy Dykes said Stratton would coach at first base and would travel with the club.

Stratton walks with the aid of an artificial leg.

The White Sox and the National league champion Cubs will play a benefit game for Stratton Monday.

Schmeling To Fight European Champion

BERLIN, April 14.—(AP)—Max Schmeling today signed a contract for his first bout since Joe Louis knocked him out in one round at New York last June 22. He will meet Adolf Heuser, of Bonn, light-heavyweight and heavyweight champion of Europe, at Stuttgart on July 2.

The Chief Favored In $7,500 Handicap

Johnstown, Derby Candidate in Field; Meade Rides Early Delivery.

By THOMAS H. NOONE.
NEW YORK, April 14.—(UP)—Colonel H. Maxwell Howard's The Chief, saddled by Earle Sande, will rule favorite over Belair Stud's Kentucky Derby hopeful, Johnstown, when the field parades postward in the $7,500 Paumonok Handicap, feature event of the inaugural program at Jamaica Saturday.

Carrying top weight of 125 pounds, The Chief will concede plenty of poundage to small field which will include Mrs. W. Plunket Stewart's Early Delivery with Don Meade in the saddle. Early Delivery has been assigned 116 pounds in the six furlongs opening stakes, four more than Johnstown, which will be ridden by Jimmie Stout.

Supporting the Paumonok will be six overnight events, in one of which El Chico, the Kentucky Derby favorite, is expected to make his seasonal bow. This event, also at six furlongs, has the assurance of Belair Stud's Gilded Knight as a starter and Our Mat, stablemate of El Chico, but may have to be called off unless more owners of three-year-olds enter their charges before noon Friday.

Jockey Basil James has been engaged to ride The Chief in the Paumonok. The colt has completed training for his seasonal bow and will be about 2-1 in the betting. Sande arrived at Belmont Park last Thursday from Columbia, S. C., where Stagehand, his stable star, was on the ailing list after finishing third in the Widener Challenge cup in Florida last March. Stagehand has been turned out for the season, Sande said.

A notable absentee from the Paumonok field will be Fighting Fox, another Belair Stud stand-bearer. The colt is going to Havre de Grace to keep his engagement in the Harford handicap on the week end, according to Trainer Jimmy Fitzsimmons.

El Chico was given his final speed test at Belmont Park Wednesday. The 1938 juvenile champion dashed five furlongs in 1:02 and pulled up to the three-quarter pole in 1:16. Our Mat was saddled for a five furlong gallop Thursday. He breezed the distance in 1:03 3-5.

Only five others loom as prospective starters in the Paumonok.

WHAT DOES Uniformity MEAN IN A BEER?

"As like as peas in a pod" they say—and like-ness such as that is one of the tests of a really fine beer. UNIFORMITY in a beer means that its flavor does not vary from bottle to bottle, from day to day or from season to season.

At the Atlantic Breweries we spend thousands and thousands of dollars a year to make sure of uniformity. The fine grains and choice hops which go into Atlantic Beer are scientifically selected to prevent variation. Every step of the brewing is under precision control.

That is why every bottle of Atlantic Beer is exactly like every other bottle—the same in its pale amber clarity, the same in its dry mellow flavor and velvety smoothness—always delicious, always refreshing, always satisfying.

Good Old Atlantic Beer, though it costs you only ten cents a bottle, is made the slow, expensive way—as fine beer must be made.

We challenge anyone, anywhere, to brew a better beer at any price.

Ponce de Leon Fans Hear Eight Managers

Novel Hook-Up With Rest of League Gives Fans Pennant Race Views.

By BILL MUNDAY.

Southern league president, Major Trammell Scott, Friday at the opening game here between the Crackers and the Lookouts issued a challenge to managers, players and umpires to "give our paying guests what they have paid to see—a hustling, heads-up baseball game, not only today but every day."

And every patron at inaugural tilts here and in Nashville, Memphis and New Orleans—through perhaps the most novel and certainly the most thrilling and interesting sports hook-up ever arranged in Dixie—heard him in the respective parks over loud-speakers.

HEAR EIGHT MANAGERS.

Then they applauded as the eight managers pledged their whole-hearted support to their proxy. But were disappointed because they were reticent about forecasting the ultimate outcome of what they all believed would be the best race in Southern league annals.

One could hear the cheers of the Voltown gathering—"Thank you, President Scott. We had a marvelous spring training at Monroe, La., and a successful exhibition here. We are in shape and ready to go and don't worry, we'll be in there beating down with everything at all times."

"You know Knoxville is the dark horse, they say, this year."

do remains to be seen. But the bell has sounded. We are on the firing line and prepared as best we could. Let's go."

ED ZWILLING TALKS.
Came Ed Zwilling, also from Pelicanand, who is heading Birmingham.

"We assure you, Major, that we will give you baseball of the highest caliber. But at this time I am not predicting. May the best team, as you have hopes, emerge victorious."

From the field, Manager Kiki Cuyler, one of the greatest ball players of this or any other loop has dispatched majorward, was paged.

Receiving a warm hand and obviously appreciative nervous he explained that throughout the winter he laboriously had endeavored to bolster his outfit.

TRIBUTE TO RICHARDS.

The multitude arose as one man to pay tribute to Manager Paul Richards, last on the program. "I am glad to be back," he smiled. "With you splendid supporters, with Earl Mann and to work in a league with such a splendid gentleman, sportsman and efficient executive as Major Trammell Scott."

"In conclusion," Mr. Scott—he would not overlook anyone—saluted the newcomers.

His part over, Paul Richards was presented with the customary opening day luck emblem, a giant flower horseshoe.

SEASON ENDS.

MARIETTA, Ga., April 14.—J. J. Daniels, Cobb ordinary, issued a reminder today that the fishing season ends in Cobb county Saturday night and will not be open again until June 1. He urged strict observance of the season. Several other north Georgia counties, however, will have open seasons throughout April and May.

Child Education Parley Elects

Olga Adams Named Head for Two Years; Group Backs Program for 2 to 5-Year-Old Children.

The Association for Childhood Education, concluding a five-day convention in Atlanta, resolved yesterday to give support to educational programs "planned to meet the needs" of two to five-year-old children, "recognizing the unique value of education in democratic living during the early years of life and home at school."

Olga Adams, of the University of Chicago, writer on kindergarten and elementary school subjects, was elected president of the association for the next two years. Milwaukee was chosen the 1940 convention city.

Two other officers named: Louise Alder, of Milwaukee State Teachers' College and M. Elisebeth Brugger, of Iowa State Teachers' College at Cedar Falls, Ia., to vice presidencies representing kindergartens and nursery schools respectively.

Other officers continue their terms until next year. About 3,000 educators attended the sessions.

The association also resolved to "develop democratic living and learning in the schools, and give increased time to thinking and planning with parents so that the school and home together may promote insight and understanding, attitudes and skills essential to participation in democratic culture."

CONSULTANT TO AID HEALTH PROBERS

LANIER DEFENDS COVERAGE OF NEWS

Huie Aide Claims Newspapers Misquoted Him.

When Zach Cravey, assistant to Labor Commissioner Ben T. Huie, suggested to the Georgia house economy committee he had been "misquoted" in the newspapers, Chairman Wilmer Lanier, of Augusta, ordered the stenographic record read. Then he said:

"I think it should be fairly stated for the press that they reported what really was stated here yesterday; that these other things (explanations) came up and explained it, but as far as what went on yesterday, the papers reported what happened."

MUSGROVE SUGGESTED FOR YEOMANS POST

Representative Walter Harrison, of Jenkins county, wired Governor Rivers yesterday that Downing Musgrove, executive secretary to Rivers, would be "an excellent choice" as a successor to the late M. J. Yeomans as attorney general for the State Hospital Authority. State Senator Paul Lindsay and John Lewis, state purchasing agent, also have been mentioned.

Governor Rivers pointed out yesterday this post is filled by selection by the Authority itself, composed of R. H. Freeman Jr., of Macon; Sid Howell, of Blakely, and Ivan Allen Jr., of Atlanta.

Miss Armstrong Weds Mr. Barge

The marriage of Miss Shirley Josephine Armstrong, daughter of Mrs. George Edmund Armstrong Sr. and Ed Malone Barge was solemnized recently at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Albert I. Armstrong, on Sheridan road.

Rev. Dow Kirkpatrick officiated and a program of music was presented by Mrs. Dolly Watts, pianist.

Vows were spoken before an improvised altar of palms and baskets of white flowers. Candelabra held lighted tapers.

Mrs. J. L. Puckett, matron of honor, wore a navy tailored suit with white accessories and a spray of sweet peas.

Misses Kathryn Herder and Mamie Feckoury acted as bridesmaids. Miss Herder wearing a tailored suit with powder blue accessories, and Miss Feckoury a black tailored suit with white accessories. Their flowers were sweet peas.

The junior bridesmaid, Miss Rose Allen Armstrong wore a model of rose crepe, and her accessories were of white.

The bride wore a three-piece suit of blue and white trimmed in gray fur. She wore navy accessories and her flowers were roses and valley lilies.

After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong entertained at a reception at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Y. Carter, Frank Freeman, Clarence Armstrong and Clifford Eason.

Mrs. W. R. Lynch kept the bride's book.

The bride's table was centered with a red wedding cake flanked by candelabra holding lighted white tapers.

Mr. and Mrs. Barge left for a wedding trip to Miami and upon their return will reside in Decatur.

Miss Evelyn Merritt Weds Mr. McDonald.

MACON, Ga., April 14.—Miss Evelyn Anthony Merritt, daughter of Mrs. Benjamin Franklin Merritt, and Mr. McDonald, of Atlanta, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. McDonald, of Hazlehurst, were married at 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the First Presbyterian church. Rev. Albert Grady Harris officiated and music was played by Crockett Odum, organist.

Ushers were Dr. Frank Thomas, of Albany; Dr. Frank Norman Gibson, of Thomson; Wayne McCain and Joseph Merritt, brother of the bride.

Bridesmaids were Miss Verna Clark and Miss Josephine Willingham. They wore gowns of cornflower blue net, fashioned with long, fitted waists and tiered skirts. Their blue net turbans were trimmed with veils and they carried bouquets of blue and yellow iris, sweetpeas, Tailsman and Joanna Hill roses.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Joseph Merritt, wore a similar gown of maize net with a matching turban and her flowers, similar to those carried by the bridesmaids, were arranged in a large bouquet and combined with the colors.

Dr. Louis McDonald, of Atlanta, was best man for his brother.

Given in marriage by her brother, Benjamin Franklin Merritt Jr., the bride wore white net posed over tulle and fashionably accented with a large bouquet of those worn by her attendants. The sleeves to her wedding gown were long and fitted and the tiered skirt extended to form a train.

Filmy tulle was caught to her hair with clusters of orange blossoms and cascaded to form a fingertip veil. Her only ornament was a single strand of pearls and her flowers were lilies of the valley and gardenias.

After the ceremony Mr. McDonald and his bride left by motor for Florida and after their wedding trip they will reside at 10 Pine circle, N. E., Apartment D, Atlanta. For traveling the bride wore a sheer crepe ensemble of luggage tan and white. Her hat was of luggage tan straw and she wore matching accessories.

Bridal Couple Feted At Rehearsal Party.

Following the wedding rehearsal last evening of Miss Alice Brooks and Dana Bruce Burns Jr., of Asheville, N. C., whose marriage will be an event of today, Misses Jane Franklin and Edith Fugitt entertained with buffet supper at the home of Miss Fugitt on Alston drive.

Guests included the wedding personnel. In the center of the lace-covered dining room table was a wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. The house was effectively decorated with violets and rosebuds. Assisting were Mesdames W. E. Franklin and C. T. Fugitt.

Gamma Phi Beta.

Mesdames Jack May and James Binns, of the Atlanta alumnae chapter of Gamma Phi Beta sorority, are official delegates to the biennial district conference of Province 8, being held at Birmingham, Ala. Active and alumnae members of the Birmingham Southern College chapter are hostesses to the other chapters of Province 8, which includes Goucher College, Rollins Institute, Randolph-Macon Women's College and the college of William and Mary.

Grand Council of Gamma Phi Beta is represented by Miss Alice Camerer, of Detroit, Mich., international treasurer. Miss Camerer presided at the past 12 years, is professor of geography at Wayne University, Detroit.

Mrs. James Binns, of Atlanta, director of Province 8, and Miss Caroline Gignilliat, of Birmingham, are in charge of arrangements. The theme of the conference is "Fraternity Relationship Within and Without," upon which topic Dr. Eoline W. Moore, dean of women at Birmingham Southern, will speak to the delegates today.

Wiener Roast.

Members of Mizpah Class of Baptist Tabernacle entertained recently at a wiener roast at the country home of Mrs. Ruth Adams. Thirty guests were present.

Le Dejeune Francis meets at 3 o'clock with Miss Elma Harwell at her home on Piedmont avenue.

Peachtree Baptist Royal Ambassadors meet at 2:30 o'clock at the church.

Every Saturday Club meets at 11 o'clock with Mrs. Thomas C. Whitner at 108 Fifth street, northwest.

Miss Mary Ann Irby Weds Mr. Leathers

COLUMBIA, S. C., April 14.—Of interest throughout South Carolina and Georgia is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Mary Ann Irby, of Laurens, S. C., to Marvin Wood Leathers, of Douglasville. The ceremony was performed in the manse of the A. R. P. church in Columbia, S. C., on March 25 with Rev. R. C. Betts, pastor of the church, officiating.

Miss Ruth Nunnally, maid of honor, wore a black and champagne colored ensemble. Black accessories and a shoulder bouquet of Joanna Hill roses, completed her costumes. R. C. Harding, of Augusta, was best man.

The bride wore a costume suit of state blue, featuring wide lapels of lynx fur and a flared skirt. Her accessories were navy blue. Her shoulder bouquet was of purple throated orchids.

Mrs. Ina S. Irby, mother of the bride, wore a poude blue crepe, with navy accessories and a shoulder bouquet of talisman roses.

After the ceremony the bride's mother entertained at a reception, assisted by Mrs. J. C. Brown.

The bride and groom left for a wedding trip, after which they will reside in Atlanta.

Mrs. Harry Stearns Plans Aperitif Party.

Mrs. Harry L. Stearns will be hostess tomorrow afternoon at the Piedmont Driving Club at a cocktail party honoring Mrs. Stearns' son and daughter, Count and Countess Benard de Sieyes, of Buenos Aires, who will leave at an early date. The Countess de Sieyes is the former Miss Alice Stearns, one of Atlanta's most popular belles, and, with her children, has spent the past few months with Mrs. Stearns at her home on Peachtree street.

Count de Sieyes will leave Sunday for New York city. He will return to Atlanta to accompany the Countess and their children to New York on May 2, from where they will sail May 6 for their home.

Seventy-five members of prominent Atlanta society have been invited to call at 3 o'clock.

Surprise Luncheon.

Mrs. Eugene Bush, of Hapeville, was honored recently at a surprise birthday luncheon given by Mrs. B. S. Davis at her home on White Oak avenue.

Guests were Mesdames M. U. Howell, B. S. Dickey, W. P. Burdette, G. H. Mayfield and B. S. Davis Jr., Misses Babra Davis and Ann Mayfield.

Bridal Party.

Miss Sybil Savage will entertain at her home Sunday evening in honor of Miss Sammie Porter and David Terrell, whose marriage will be solemnized on May 10.

Guests will include Misses Bobby Richards, Doris Shiver, Anlie Galloway, Pat Barrett and Edith Theobald; Messrs. Paul Galloway, Bill Roman, Joe Lewis, Tom Richards, Joe Milligan, Frank Lowe and Jack Adams. Mr. and Mrs. Dick Williamson, Mr. and Mrs. George Hayes and others.

Children of Fun-Loving Family Have Normal Attitudes Toward Life

If You're Under Thirty You Can Be Underweight

By Ida Jean Kain.

Is Hollywood going too far with its streamlining? Is the vogue for slimmest affecting the health of the screen players? Binnie Barnes says it is not, that there doesn't exist a healthier group of people than those appearing in pictures in this country.

Since Miss Barnes comes from England, where the cinema players are allowed to be quite a bit heavier without anybody minding, she might be expected to take a critical view of the insistence on streamlines for our screen. But just the opposite is true. "The Hollywood girls are not doing bad diets any more," she declares. "They are doing good diets and are keeping very healthy." (Evidently they do diets in England!) Also, Miss Barnes points out, the film players spend a great deal of their time in outdoor sports, which are marvelous for anybody.

In general, she thinks that Englishwomen may be a little more sports-minded than American women. "They are terrific tennis players!" But then she very tactfully qualified this comparison by saying that "it may be that they make more noise about their sports in England."

At any rate, Miss Barnes herself finds tennis an excellent means of keeping fit. She plays a very good game and plays every day that she is not working on a picture. Here are her measurements: Waist, 24 inches; hips, 37½ inches; bust, 36 inches. She is five feet, seven and one-half inches tall, and weighs 128 pounds.

Miss Barnes has practically no trouble controlling her weight because as soon as she gains three pounds she goes on a diet composed mainly of vegetables, prepared without salt. That takes care of the three pounds!

With such firm treatment, a weight increase never grows up to be a problem. Anyone can take off three pounds—but 30 pounds is quite an order. You couldn't do better than follow Miss Barnes' example and limit your gaining. If you would do that, you would never need go on a long, rigorous diet. This is the plan followed by most women who are noted for their beauty.

Don't be misled by the weight tables and make too much allowance for gaining weight. These tables represent averages rather than perfect weights, and according to these calculations a 10-pound gain in 20 years is to be expected. But this is just the reverse of your healthiest weight trend. If you are under 30, the doctors recommend that you be slightly underweight.

If you start reducing in time, you won't have to follow a diet for more than a week or so. But even on these short-term diets, take another tip from Miss Barnes and exercise. In addition to her tennis playing, she has a few bending and stretching exercises for whenever she goes on a diet because, she explains, she wouldn't feel well if she didn't. And her figure would not be as lovely, either!

Doctor Accepts Reader's Dare

By Dr. William Brady.

After all, without advice and criticism readers give the geek that conducts this column, it would not be so much fun.

Here is a good one from a man who writes on stationery bearing his name and that of a famous university:

Dear Sir: I think you are a lot of hokey. I usually glance at your column every day but I think after what you said today (March 6, 1939) that it won't be very hard for me to break the habit.

Since when has it been insane to believe that "plenty of pure fresh air, plain wholesome food and regular sleep" is essential in building up your resistance? Yes, I said resistance. You say resistance "doesn't mean a thing." (Your own words—not mine, thank the good Lord.)

You say that people who talk about "good wholesome food" don't know what they're talking about. And then you go on to talk about dairy products, eggs, fresh vegetables and fruits. You've said exactly what any rational person would answer were he asked his idea of good wholesome food is, only a little less. But I'm convinced now that you're highly irrational.

Maybe you never noticed the difference in the stale smoke-filled air of a poolroom and the air out in the country or on the ocean. Or do you stay in the poolroom?

You'll see the answers to the questions of fresh air and sleep and rest and good wholesome food as plain as any reader can see the fallacies in your column. If you'll just take time off to visit a tuberculosis sanitarium where they know something about it.

I'm convinced you're a QUACK and if you're as much a man as you are a "bona fide physician" you'll be afraid to print this. I dare you!

Ex-Reader. A. D. M., Jr. But shucks, A. D. M., Jr., doesn't glance at this column any more, so what's the use trying to get back on speaking terms with him?

The article released for publication in my column on the day to which A. D. M., Jr., refers dealt with "Food Cooked As You Like," and contained no reference either to "plenty of pure fresh air, plain wholesome food and regular sleep" or to "resistance." This is as far as I have the heart to delve back in the copy files to discover what's biting A. D. M., Jr.

If rational persons mean dairy products, eggs, fresh vegetables and fresh fruits when they say "good wholesome food," that will be entirely satisfactory to me—but why don't they say so occasionally instead of leaving the reader or listener to guess what they mean?

I haven't tested the air in a poolroom lately, but I do sometimes attend meetings of the medical society or visit a beach club, so I have a fair idea what foul air is like.

Still I insist that doctors or others offering health advice should specify what foods they are talking about when they utter stereotyped comments about "good wholesome, nourishing, easily digestible" food. If this is HOOEY or QUACKERY, all right, I'm William H. Q. Brady.

A new Hollywood style is launched as Barbara Stanwyck includes in her summer wardrobe this "waist and skirt" dinner dress inspired by the 1860 version of this inevitable feminine fashion. In Paramount's "Union Pacific," in which Miss Stanwyck co-stars with Ray McCreary, she wears an authentic 1860 challis waist and skirt. In this 1939 version the same black challis, covered with tiny pink rosebuds, is used for a casual dinner shirt, with jeweled buttons. The skirt is black silk jersey, also copied from that in the screen wardrobe, and her belt of green leather has a shamrock design in green stones instead of nailheads, as used in the original design. Stripes of deep rose, green and purple add color animation to the full skirt.

Olivier, in "Wuthering Heights," Called Masculine Hedy Lamarr

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, April 14.—Kay Francis with Director Fritz Lang at the "Wuthering Heights" preview, which seems to make her non-marriage with that baron of hers more or less final. . . . Talking about this picture, Laurence Olivier, who plays Heathcliff, reminds me of a masculine Hedy Lamarr. He gives out the same sort of somber passion, which will make the ladies as crazy about him as the gentlemen are over Hedy Lamarr. . . . Tyrone Power at the preview escorted Annabella and Marlene Dietrich. I remember the time—now so long ago—when Marlene could have had the pick of any six male escorts she desired. Now she has to share one with another woman. There is no tougher place than Hollywood for the star who is not in picture demand.

The biography cycle marches on. "Disraeli" is the next life story scheduled in the Warner Brothers studio. Leslie Howard has been offered the title role. If he accepts, he will play one of his few old-man roles on the screen. The story concerns the latter period of Disraeli's life, showing him outwitting the European powers for control of the Suez Canal, and until his death at the age of 77. Cissie Loftus will portray Queen Victoria. The picture gets underway just as soon as Miss Loftus finishes playing the grandmother of Bette Davis and Miriam Hopkins in "The Old Maid" and when Mr. Howard is through with the Ashley role in "Gone With the Wind."

Is Ray Milland relieved? The sudden change of plans by which he goes to England for the lead opposite Ellen Drew in Paramount's "French Without Tears" relieves him of that chore with Dorothy Lamour in "Unlabeled." The latter will begin while Milland is still in England. And, when he returns, he has to make Louise Campbell. . . . There are four Jane Withers pictures on the Twentieth Century-Fox forthcoming schedule—the first, "The Chicken Wagon Family," followed by "High School," "The Roughneck" and "The Brat." . . . "Dawn," the story of Nurse Edith Cavell, shot as a spy by the Germans during the World War, will be the first Hollywood picture for Anna Neagle, preceding "The Story of Marie Lloyd."

Good title for Irving Berlin's next movie musical—"Say It With Music"—from his stage musical. . . . The cast of "The Women" gets stronger every day. Already set are Norma Shearer, Joan Crawford, Ina Claire, Joan Fontaine, Ruth Hussey and Lucille Watson. . . . Nice to know that Columbia kept its promise of casting an unknown for the top male role in "Golden Boy"—William Holden is the lucky lad. He is under contract to Paramount, but has done nothing yet for the screen. His services will be shared from now on by Columbia and Paramount. . . . Don Ameche, Tyrone Power and Alice Faye get together again for "Dance With the Devil."

Winners in Jesse Lasky's gateway to Hollywood radio program—Ralph Bowman, of Lincoln, Neb., and Rowena Cook, of New York—appear in RKO's "Career" as John Archer and Alice Eden. It will be interesting to see whether this is just an advertising stunt, or whether the couple will get a chance to go places in Hollywood after their novelty appearance in "Career."

WUTHERING HEIGHTS

By EMILY BRONTE

INSTALLMENT XXIII.

For some days after that evening, Mr. Heathcliff shunned meeting us at meals; yet he would not consent formally to exclude Hareton and Cathy.

One night, after the family were in bed, I heard him go downstairs and out at the front door. I did not hear him re-enter, and in the morning I found he was still away. We were in April then: the weather was sweet and warm. After breakfast Catherine insisted on my bringing a chair and sitting with my work under the fir trees at the end of the house; and she beguiled Hareton to dig and arrange her little garden. I was comfortably reveling in the spring fragrance around when my young lady, who had run down near the gate to procure some primrose roots for a border, returned only half-laden and informed us that Mr. Heathcliff was coming in. "And he spoke to me," she added with a perplexed countenance.

"What did he say?" asked Hareton.

"He told me to begone as fast as I could," she answered. "But he looked so different from his usual look that I stopped a moment to stare at him."

"How?" he inquired.

"Why, almost bright and cheerful. No, almost nothing—very much excited, and wild and glad!"

"Night walking amuses him, then," I remarked, affecting a careless manner. I framed an excuse to go in. Heathcliff stood at the open door. He was pale and he trembled; yet, certainly, he had a strange, joyful glitter in his eyes that altered the aspect of his whole face.

"Will you have some breakfast?" I said.

"No, I'm not hungry," he answered, averting his head.

That noon he sat down to dinner with us and received a heap-up plate from my hands, as if he intended to make amends for previous fasting. He took his knife and fork and was going to commence eating when the inclination appeared to become suddenly extinct. He laid them on the table, looked eagerly towards the window, then rose and went out. We saw him walking to and fro in the garden while we concluded our meal.

I set his plate to keep warm on the fender; and after an hour or two he re-entered.

"Have you heard any good news, Mr. Heathcliff? You look uncommonly animated."

"Where should good news come from to me?" he said. "I'm animated with hunger; and seemingly I must not eat."

"Your dinner is here," I returned. "Why won't you get it?"

"I don't want it now," he muttered hastily. "I'll wait till supper. And, Nelly, once for all, let me beg you to warn Hareton and the other away from me. Today I'm within sight of my heaven. I have my eyes on it; hardly three feet to sever me!"

He did not quit the house again that afternoon, and no one intruded on his solitude; till, at 8 o'clock, I deemed it proper, though unsummoned, to carry a candle and his supper to him. He was leaning against the ledge of an open lattice, but not looking out; his face was turned to the interior gloom. The fire had shouldered to ashes; the room was filled with the damp, mild air of the cloudy evening.

The lights from my candle flashed on his features. Oh, Mr. Lockwood, I cannot express what a terrible start I got by the momentary view! Those deep black eyes! That smile, and ghastly paleness! I let the candle bend towards the wall and it left me in darkness.

"There, that is pure awkwardness! Why did you hold the candle horizontally? Be quick and bring another."

I hurried out in a foolish state of dread, and said to Joseph: "The master wishes you to take him a light. For I dared not go in myself again just then."

Joseph rattled some fire into the shovel, and went; but he brought it back immediately, with the supper tray in his other hand, explaining that Mr. Heathcliff was going to bed, and he wanted nothing to eat till morning. We heard him mount the stairs directly; he did not proceed to his ordinary chamber, but turned into that with the paneled bed; its window, as I mentioned before, is wide enough for anybody to get through; and it struck me that he plotted another midnight excursion, of which he had rather had no suspicion.

Dawn, I rose and went into the garden as soon as I could see, to ascertain if there were any footmarks under his window. There were none.

On my re-entrance I found Mr. Heathcliff below, and I put a basin of coffee before him. He drew it near and then rested his arms on the table and looked at the opposite wall with glittering, restless eyes.

"Come, now," I exclaimed, pushing some bread against his hand. "Eat and drink there while it is hot; it has been waiting near an hour."

He grew irritable and got up, asking why I would not allow him to have his own time in taking his meals. Having uttered these words he left the house, slowly sauntered down the garden path, and disappeared through the gate.

The hours crept anxiously by; another evening came. I did not return to rest till late, and when I did, I could not sleep. He returned after midnight, and, instead of going to bed, shut himself into the room beneath. I listened, and tossed about, and, finally, dressed and descended. It was too late to knock on his door; my brain with a hundred idle misgivings.

I distinguished Mr. Heathcliff's step, restlessly measuring the floor, and he frequently broke the silence by a deep inspiration, resembling a groan. He muttered detached words also; the only one I could catch was the name of Catherine, coupled with some wild term of endearment or suffering; and spoken as one would speak to a person present; low and earnest, and wrung from the depth of his soul. I had not courage to walk straight into the apartment; but I desired to divert him from his reverie, and therefore fell foul of the kitchen fire, stirred it, and began to scrape the cinders. It drew him forth sooner than I expected. He opened the door immediately, and said:

"Nelly, come here—is it morning? Come in with your light."

"It is striking four," I answered. "You want a candle to take upstairs; you might have lit one at this fire."

"No, I don't wish to go upstairs," he said. "Come in, and kindle me a fire, and do anything there is to do about the room."

He roamed to add fro, meantime, in a state of approaching distraction.

"When day breaks I'll send for Green," he said. "I have not written my will yet; and how to leave my property I cannot determine."

I interposed: "Let your will be a while. Do take some food and some repose. You need only look at yourself in a glass to see how you require both."

"It is not my fault that I cannot eat or rest," he replied. "I'll do both as soon as I possibly can. But you might as well bid a man struggling in the water rest without in arm's length of the shore! I must reach it first, and then I'll rest. Well, never mind. Mr. Green, I've done no injustice and I repent of nothing. I'm too happy."

"Happy, master?" I cried. "Strange happiness!"

"When I die, Nelly, I am to be carried to the churchyard in the evening. You and Hareton may, if you please, accompany me. No minister need come; nor need anything be said over me. I tell you I have nearly attained my heaven, and that of others is altogether unvalued and uncoveted by me."

As soon as he heard the other members of the family stirring he retired to his den, and I breathed freer. But in the afternoon, while Joseph and Hareton were at their work, and with a wild look, bid me come and sit in the house; he wanted somebody with him. I declined: telling him plainly that his strange talk and manner frightened me, and I had neither the nerve nor the will to be his companion alone.

"I believe you think me a friend," he said, with his dismal laugh; "something too horrible to live under a decent roof." Then turning to Catherine, who was there, and who drew behind me at his approach, he added, half-smilingly: "Will you come chuck? I'll not hurt you. No! to you I've made myself worse than the devil. Well, there is one who won't shrink from my company! By God! she's relentless. It's too much for flesh and blood to bear—even mine."

He solicited the society of no one more. At dusk, he went into his chamber. Through the whole night, and far into the morning, we heard him groaning and murmuring to himself. Hareton was anxious to enter; but I bade him fetch Dr. Kenneth, and he should go in and see him. When he came, and I requested admittance and tried to open the door, I found it locked; and Heathcliff bid us be damned. He was better, and would be left alone; so the doctor went away.

ACCIDENTAL SHOT IS FATAL TO BOY, 8

Child Dies While Playing
With Rifle at His Grandmother's.

A visit to his grandmother's home ended in tragedy yesterday when eight-year-old Robert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Spratlin, accidentally shot and killed himself with a .22-caliber rifle.

A companion, Robert Mason, 10, told police young Spratlin was playing with the weapon in the living room of the home of Mrs. Belle M. Spratlin, at 1921 Howell Mill road, when the gun was discharged.

A negro maid heard the report and ran into the room. She said, "What happened, Robert?" The boy, gasping for breath, panted, "I shot myself." He then lost consciousness.

Members of the family arrived shortly afterward. The boy was hurried in an ambulance to Crawford W. Long Memorial hospital. He was pronounced dead on arrival. The bullet had penetrated his chest near the heart.

The Mason boy was questioned by police. He said only young Spratlin was playing with the gun. The body was removed to the establishment of Henry M. Blanchard.

Andy Plunkett, Barbecue King, Dies; Known World Over for Famed Dish

Atlanta, 63, Started Unique Career 50 Years Ago That Led Him to Top of Profession in Making of Noted
Georgia Viand; Covered Globe.

Andrew J. Plunkett, 63, whose reputation as "Andy, the Barbecue King," was literally world-wide, died last night at his home, 277 Fourteenth street, N. W.

The career which led him to the top of his unique profession started in Butts county about 50 years ago and took him not only to all parts of the United States but to nearly every country on the globe. Just how it started, Andy himself was never quite sure. He learned to cook the famous Georgia dish with all the trimmings while he was a small boy and in the years to come found himself in demand everywhere.

Taken on Trip to Africa. Once he was taken for a six-month trip to Africa by Harry Payne Whitney. On another occasion he put on a barbecue in Wilmington, Del., for the duPonts. And at another time he was sent to Nicaragua by the Spellman Lumber Company to prepare one of his famous Georgia dinners.

Andy also held what probably is a world's record for serving the largest number of persons at one time.

It was in Dallas, Texas, several years ago and there were 45,000 guests. Andy supervised the food for the entire crowd up to and including 45,000 cups of coffee prepared in a huge tank.

Toured World Seven Years. Prior to that he had spent just seven years touring the world, accompanied by a friend, and did virtually nothing but educate foreign races to the excellence of Georgia's best known food combination, barbecued beef and pork with Brunswick stew.

The one tragedy which marred his life was a brutal attack by three hold-up men which occurred in August, 1934. They jumped into his car, robbed him of $180, drove out the Powder Springs road and threw him down an embankment. The fall broke both legs.

In recent years he had operated "Andy's" at 2265 Peachtree road. Surviving are his wife, a daughter, Miss Ruth Plunkett, and two other sons, Henry and Walter Plunkett. Funeral arrangements are to be announced by J. Austin Dillon.

NORWEGIAN DEFENSE.—OSLO, Norway, April 14.—(AP)—The Norwegian government decided today to ask the storting (parliament) for an extraordinary appropriation of 20,000,000 kroner (about $5,000,000) for defense purposes. The money will be raised by extra taxation.

ADVERTISEMENTS FOR BIDS.—The Housing Authority of the City of Atlanta will receive sealed bids for the construction of approximately 1200 apartment units and other work incident to the completion of a low cost housing project, called John F.agan Homes, S. E. 34th St. and P. D. M. Central Daylight Savings Time, on Monday, May 15, at Council Chamber, Second Floor, City Hall, Atlanta, Georgia, at which time and place all bids will be publicly opened and read aloud. Separate bids will be taken on landscape work, certain utilities, heating and ranges. The construction bids for apartment units will be taken into separate bids in addition to the combined construction bid for all units.

The successful bidder will be required to furnish satisfactory performance and payment bond or bonds. Attention is called to the fact that not less than the minimum wage rates as set forth in the specifications must be paid on this project.

Proposed plans and specifications, including plans and specifications, will be on file at the office of the Housing Authority of the City of Atlanta, 515 First National Bank Building, Atlanta, Georgia. Copies of the documents may be obtained on or after April 15, 1939, by depositing $10.00 with the Housing Authority of the City of Atlanta for each set of documents so obtained. The amount of the deposit will be refunded to each person who submits a complete and bona fide bid and who returns the plans and documents in good condition within 10 days after the opening of bids. Bidders obtaining over two sets of documents shall pay the cost of reproduction, handling and mailing, and also agree to return all sets within 10 days after the opening of bids.

The Housing Authority of the City of Atlanta reserves the right to reject any or all bids and to waive any formalities in bidding.

No bid shall be withdrawn for a period of sixty (60) days subsequent to the opening of bids without the consent of the Housing Authority of the City of Atlanta.

HOUSING AUTHORITY OF THE CITY OF ATLANTA.
Philip Weitzer, Executive Director.

STUDY BY PARENTS URGED BY CHURCHES

Episcopal Youth Leaders' Conference Makes Recommendations.

Study groups to acquaint parents with work among young people of the church was recommended by the Episcopal Youth Leaders' Conference at its closing session yesterday at All Saints church.

It was pointed out one of the most serious stumbling blocks to efficient work is the "ignorance and indifference" of parents.

Leading the discussions was Miss Cynthia Clark, of New York, religious education leader of the National Episcopal Council, while among those taking part were Mrs. F. T. LaGrone, of Grenada, Miss. Episcopal young people's leader, and Mrs. Richard Watson, of Tuscaloosa, Ala.

The conference also recommended steps toward establishing a unified national organization for young people, with a unified program of activities for all groups. It was the opinion of youth leaders that less than one-fourth of the young people of the church have any active connection with the church's work and it was suggested conferences be held in each diocese to determine what new activities are needed and in what areas there is serious overlapping.

Recommended as study subjects next year were a mission study course, "The Relationships Between Jews and Christians," and democracy.

GETS 24-MONTHS' TERM.—J. C. Sturman, convicted of selling illegal liquor at a downtown hotel, yesterday was given a 24-months' sentence by Judge Jesse M. Wood, of the criminal court of Fulton county, with an explanation by Judge Wood that "I have sent some of your helpers to the gang, and if I assess a fine against you, it won't be treating them right." Sturman had two liquor charges against him, and it developed that he did not pay the fines of some of the negro helpers who have been convicted.
